Ouster Near For 565 in Jobs Office

Five hundred and sixty-five "temporary" jobholders in the offices of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission are going to be replaced with regular civil service employes, it became known today.

Announcement that civil service examinations will be held on April 30 and May 14 came on the eve of the legislative committee hearing, scheduled for next Monday, at which irregularities in "political" appointments in the Unemployment Compensation Commission are expected to be bared.

172 OUT THIS WEEK

A number of politically appointed employes already have been dropped by the unemployment commission, and a total of 172 will be dropped before this week is out, Chairman Emil Fuchs revealed.

The purge follows charges that political appointees have been holding jobs in violation not only of civil service requirements but of federal regulations.

State Representative Philip G. Bowker of Brookline charged at a recent hearing before the legislative committee on state administration that 17 of the compensation commission's 42 branch office superintendents were delegates for Governor Hurley at the 1936 Democratic pre-primary convention, in addition to being active officials of local Democratic organizations.

BERTHS LISTED

The examinations announced by the civil service commission today,

N.E. Council Roars Protest on Pacts

Industries in All Six States Fear Disaster If Treaties Are Signed

"Down with the trade treaties!"

That was the mighty roar voiced today in behalf of all New England industries by the New England Council, powerful amalgamation of trade associations, at its fiftieth quarterly meeting in Hartford, Conn.

New England industries in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts Rhode Island and Connecticut have voted overwhelmingly, 7 to 1, against the reciprocal trade agreements with foreign countries, James W. Hook, president of the council, announced.

With the Czechoslovakian shoe pact already wrecking the New England shoe industry, every resource the New England states possess must be brought to bear to prevent the same thing happening to the textile industry through the proposed British textile agreement, Mr. Hook and other leaders of New England industry declared.

WRECK EASTER BUSINESS

"The Czech agreement means that Czech shoe manufacturers will flood the American market during the best seasons, wrecking it for American manufacturers. Imports in January amounted to 600,000 pairs of shoes, compared with 217,000 in January a year ago.

"If this keeps up, Czech shoes will wreck the Easter shoe business for American companies."

The Czech treaty, Bates declared, means that "there is no hope of American shoe workers regaining

Whitney Again Arrested

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—The immediate rearrest of Richard Whitney, five times president of the New York Stock Exchange, on a new charge of grand larceny was ordered today by State Attorney-General John J. Bennett, Jr.

Whitney was at liberty in $10,000 bail on another first degree grand larceny charge on which he was indicted yesterday through the efforts of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

He was arrested yesterday on that charge and is to be arraigned within a week. He has not pleaded.

The present charge is based on a complaint of Commodore William A. W. Stewart, of the New York Yacht Club, prominent lawyer and former friend of Whitney, that Whitney "unlawfully" took from a saety deposit box $103,000 worth of bonds belonging to the club while Whitney was its treasurer.

Roosevelt Plans 3 Messages

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt told his press conference today he had three or four messages in mind for Congress, but he could not say at this time what their nature would be.

He did say, however, he would transmit a message soon on the world phosphate situation, and it is known he is considering another on monopolies.

Asked whether it were true he had withdrawn his support of the pending government reorganization bill and would let Congress adjourn without action, he asserted he was still very much in favor of action on that subject this session.

Tax Revision Bill Passed By House

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—The House passed the tax bill and sent it to the Senate today after declining to reinsert a special surtax on family owned and closely held corporations.

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—The House killed today an attempt to put back in the tax revision bill an administration proposal for a special surtax on family-owned and closely-held corporations.

Speaker Bankhead announced that the rollcall vote was 233 to 153.

The action paved the way for a vote on final passage of the measure.

REFUSE INCLUSION

Republicans and rebelling Democrats refused for a second and final time to include the "1B" surtax on closely held companies in the bill.

They have contended it would subject legitimate business enterprises to a punitive tax, in an attempt to reach a few firms that might be used for tax avoidance purposes.

Later the House voted, 201 to 182, to retain in the measure an excise tax on imported pork and pork products—six cents a pound in some instances and three cents in others.

Representative Thompson (R.) of Illinois, author of the amendment, said the pork tax would produce $5,000,000 annually in revenue.

Backers of the surtax said it was a means of attaining equity in taxation, and wiping out some of the tax advantages which they said closely held firms have had over those with wide stock ownership.

The tax would have affected all corporations with net incomes in excess of $75,000 whose stock was owned by members of a family or a group of no more than ten associates.

RATIFY DECISION

The House had agreed tentatively, by a 180 to 124 vote, on Wednesday to strike the "1B" tax from the bill. Today's ballot merely ratified that decision.

Discussing the family or closely owned corporation tax at his press conference, President Roosevelt said it was not a punitive levy, but an effort to "restore equality" in taxation among people in the upper brackets making the same profits.

Asked to comment on the stricken tax, the President said it might be interesting to some newspapers that what the administration was seeking was to end "special privilege" where it exists under present tax laws.

BULLETINS

ROME, March 11 (INS)—Dr. Arthur Seyzs-Inquart, Nazi Austrian minister of the interior, left Vienna by airplane for Berlin this afternoon with Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Austria, it was reported here. Von Papen early today flew to Berlin, and returned to Vienna just before Chancellor Schuschnigg resigned.

LONDON, March 11 (INS)—Dr. Otto Ender, elderly former chancellor and moderate anti-Nazi, is expected to succeed Chancellor Schuschnigg in a revamped Austrian cabinet, the Exchange Telegraph reported in a Vienna dispatch today.

BULLETINS

LONDON, March 11 (INS)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Vienna tonight reported that German planes were flying over the Austrian capital.

VIENNA, March 11 (AP)—The Austrian government press bureau announced tonight that German troops had crossed the Austrian border at Passau.

Austrian troops were ordered to fall back without resistance.

Arthur Seysz-Inquart, the Hitler-approved minister of the interior, in a radio broadcast asked that there be no resistance. He urged Austrian Nazis to maintain strict discipline.

The government press bureau announced German troops had crossed the frontier at Passau, 140 miles west of Vienna.

Two German regiments were reported to have crossed the border at Kufstein-Salzburg and Rosenheim-Salzburg.

It was reported they met with no resistance and were greeted with cheers.

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—Britain today informed Germany of "the grave concern of His Majesty's government at methods being adopted" in Reichsfuehrer Hitler's drive to Nazify Austria.

By ALFRED TYRNAUER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

VIENNA, March 11 (8:05 p. m.—2:05 p. m. E. S. T.—by Telephone to London)—Faced with the knowledge that German troops would march into Austria if he refused, Kurt Schuschnigg bowed to the will of Adolf Hitler today and resigned as chancellor.

His resignation and indefinite postponement of the "independence" plebiscite, calling which had infuriated Hitler, were officially announced in a nation-wide official broadcast at 7:45 p. m. (1:45 p. m. E. S. T.).

Two hours earlier, this correspondent had learned of Schuschnigg's fateful decision and flashed it to the United States.

The government, however, withheld confirmation until the broadcast was made, and permitted conflicting reports to circulate throughout Europe.

The broadcast announced unequivocally that Hitler had presented an ultimatum to President Wilhelm Miklas, informing him he must appoint the Fuehrer's handpicked candidate as chancellor.

Miklas, seeing no alternative, agreed and called upon Schuschnigg to resign.

Before he resigned, Schuschnigg sent an urgent appeal to London, Rome and Paris for some sort of foreign intervention to halt Hitler.

The answer was the same from every source. Great Britain, France and Italy were ready and willing

N. E. Council Attacks Pacts

Disaster Feared By Industries in All Six States

OTHER PACTS THREATEN

Not only shoes andother textiles are menaced, it was pointed out. The Czechoslovakian shoe pact has been signed, nd the British textile pact is an immediate danger, but there are other proposed pacts with these and other countries besides.

Industries directly or indirectly menaced by these other proposed pacts include:

Machinery, machine tools, hand tools, steel and wire, hardware, fasteners, cutlery, silverware, optical goods, clocks and watches, musical instruments, paper products, lithograph and printing materials, furniture, chemicals, granite, and various food products.

Threatened also and particularly is New England's fishing industry.

"Canada has asked a reduction of duties on fisheries products, particularly on fresh and frozen fillets," an aggenda presented to the New England Council meeting by Mr. Hook points out.

LOWER FISH PRICES

"More than half of the fishing fleet of New England today is operating at no profit, or at a loss."

The council's report points out that this situation in the fishing industry exists with a present tariff barrier of 2½ cents a pound. The Canadian request is for a lowering of the tariff to 1¼ cents a pound.

"The only waythat the domestic producer of fillets can meet these prices or hold the market is to lower the price he offers the fishermen and the boat owners . . . which is an impossibility . . . a more than halfthe fleets must have higher prices if it is to continue to operate," the report warns.

Similar conditions exist with relation to practically all of the other industries menaced, Mr. Hook declared. The trade pacts, in a word, he said, let in foreign products to be sold here at prices so low that they will drive American producers out of business.

40 PER CENT AFFECTED

"An examination of the types and value of the products of New England named in the proposed British pact discloses that they constitute more than 40 per cent of our total industrial production," Mr. Hok said.

"Of the 350 classes of industry recognized by the United States census bureau, 220 are found in New England. Sixty-dustry of the United States is located in New England. We make a third or more of the national output of other important products.

"The hundreds of our manufacturers engaged in the production of items named in the proposed British past are fearful of the effect of any tariff reductions that may be granted the British."

MENACE TO ALL N. E.

Added to this, Mr. Hook pointed out, is the danger of similar reductions that automaticaly would be granted to other countries with whom the United States has signed "most favored nation" treaties.

Not only New England manufacturers are threatened, Mr. Hook stressed, but also wage-earners, and all of the communities dependent upon these factories and their wage-earners' purchases.

"How able a trader is our Secretary of State," Mr. Hook demanded, "and does he understand how seriously New England industries and their employes will be affected if they are exposed to heavy importations from countries whose labor and other costs are far lower than our manufacturers can hope to achieve?

SEE BENEFIT TO JAPAN

"It is my personal opinion that policies that put our American prices too far out of line with world prices, now that we are capable of producing surpluses in almost every field of agriculture and industry, are dangerous and short-sighted."

Letter after letter was read to the New England Council meeting, expressing the fears of manufacturers throughout the New England states.

Textile manufacturers stressed the fact that Japan will benefit through its "most favored nation" treaty with the United States just as much as England will through the proposed textile pact.

TAKE AMERICAN JOBS

"The Northern cotton textile wage scale is the highest in the world. This high labor cost prevents our products from finding an outlet in the export market. The domestic market will only consume so much of our cotton products each year.

"Consequently, any foreign goods coming in automatically replace goods of domestic manufacture, and foreign workers, in effect, take jobs from American workers."

A representative letter from the machinery industry, likewise threatened by "reciprocal trade pacts that don't reciprocate," points out:

HITS MACHINE SHOPS

"We feel that after the present armament program in Europe has been completed the machine shops over there will be looking for more work, and it is bound to have a serious effect on all kinds of machine shop work in this country."

Representatives of the furniture industry said:

"The proposed British pact, if signed, must automatically become available to all countries having a 'most favored nation' treaty with the United States.

"Therefore we would have to compete with Czechoslovakia, where wages are exceedingly low and where the manufacturers are very aggressive. This also would apply to Poland and Italy and, we believe, to practically every important nation except Germany.

SPOIL BEST MARKET

"This is the greatest danger to the furniture industry itself, but on top of that is the fact that he proposed British pact would directly and severely affect the woolen and worsted industry, as the Czech pact already is affecting the shoe industry, all of which, of course, will react on the purchasing power in all of our New England cities and therefore spoil for us our nearest and best market."

A typical letter representing the chemical industry referred to the proposed British pact reduction in the tariff on sodium hydrosulphites, and declared:

"This drastic reduction in the duty would practically eliminate all chance of the continuation of manufacturing the material in this country."

GRANITE MEN PROTEST

A representative letter from the granite industry read:

"It has been our honest belief that unless we have a tariff high enough so that foreign goods can not be sold under American prices, we are all going to lose, regardless of whether it is directly affecting New England products or not."

Henry F. Grady, vice-chairman of the United States Tariff Commission and chairman of the committee on reciprocity information, was a speaker at the New England Council meeting. He endeavored to defend the reciprocal agreements, declaring—

LIBERALIZE POLICY

"This program is not intended to diminish production for American industry, agriculture or labor. On the contrary, it is intended to increase it.

"It is our effort to liberalize our commercial policy in the interest of our export business, which is of very great importance to a large section of American production."

'Ghost Cities' Loom

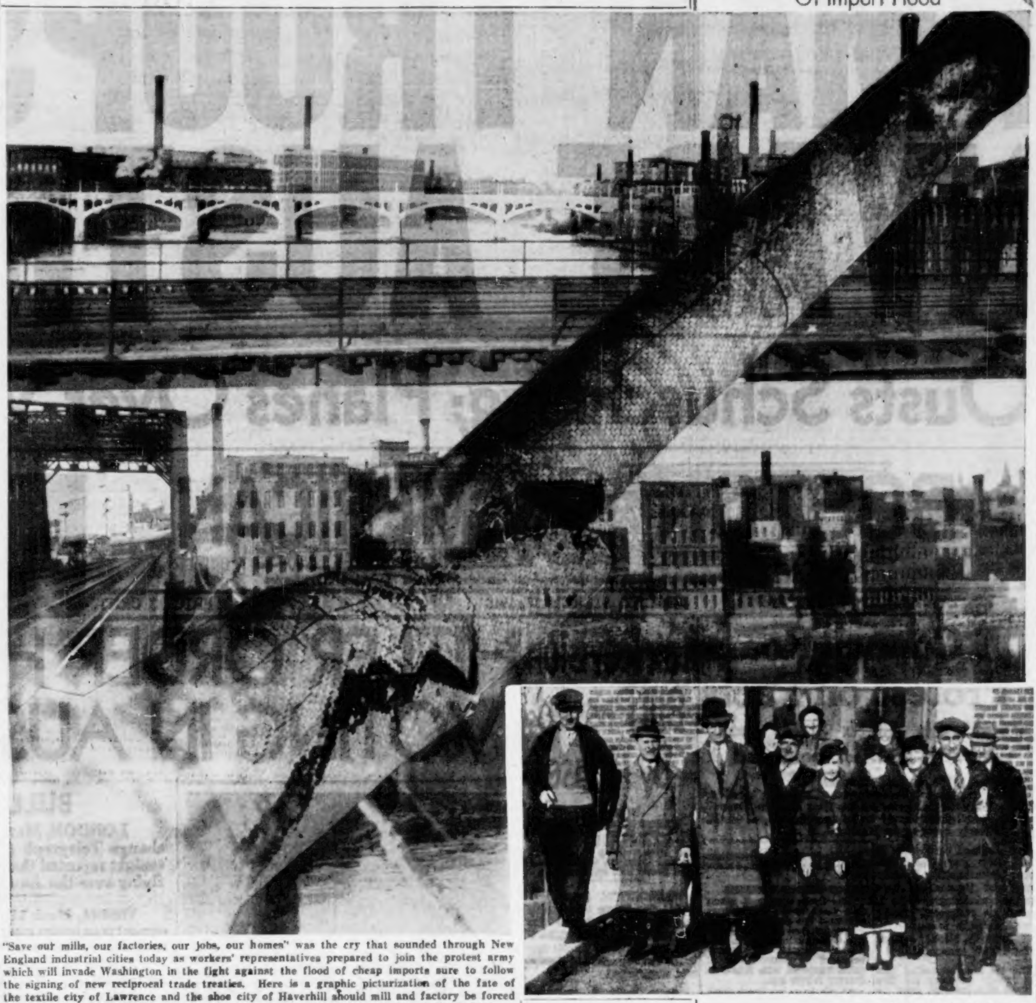
Falling Chimneys, Abandoned Factories Seen in Wake Of Import Flood



Boston Evening American Photos

"Save our mills, our factories, our jobs, our homes" was the cry that sounded through New England industrial cities today as workers' representatives prepared to join the protest army which will invade Washington in the fight against the flood of cheap imports sure to follow the signing of new reciprocal trade treaties. Here is a graphic picturization of the fate of the textile city of Lawrence and the shoe city of Haverhill should mill and factory be forced to close. No smiling, well-dressed workers leaving factories and mills then—instead chimneys toppling on "ghost cities," now the pride of the industrial world.

Roosevelt Plea For 'Jobs and More Jobs'

Voices Appeal as He Opens Community Chest Drive

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt, opening the nation's annual Community Chest campaign, declared today that "only in jobs and more jobs, at good pay, shall we find national stability and individual security."

Addressing a meeting of the mobilization for human needs in the East room of the White House, the President appealed for a "united front" in making the 1938 private charity program a success.

He pointed out that direct relief, provided by the community chests, was aimed at "many problems of human misfortune — adjusting maladjusted families, taking care of the sick, tiding over crises in family life."

Work relief, a federal task to which he said he was definitely committed, is designed to provide jobs for "normal people who can give useful work to the country, and seeking adjustment of a maladjusted society rather than of maladjusted individuals."

THIRD UNDER 25

"The importance of these employable millions may be more fully understood, perhaps," he said, "when it is realized that approximately one-third of them are under 25 years of age and will be either assets or liabilities for many years to come.

"If we do not give them a chance at something like normal living, it is inevitable that they will become millions of individual problems. For these able-boded unemployed, I am definitely committed to the giving of jobs instead of relief."

The President said it was true that the "national economy does not today permit the federal government to give useful work to all the employable needy unemployed, but the federal government is doing so in the great majority of cases."

The able-bodied unemployed "need work and should have it," he continued, adding:

"But equally the economic system needs that they should have it. A Federal works program not only serves the unemployed, it saves the jobs of those who have jobs.

"Our industrial production cannot progress, as it must, unless our masses have income with which to buy its products."

STIMULATE PRIVATE EMPLOYMENT

Millions Asked For N. E. Projects

Expenditure of $12,708,000 for New England river and harbor projects as part of a nation-wide program was recommended to Congress today by the National Resources Committee, according to word from Washington.

To dredge the channel in Boston $2,300,000 was recommended. The expenditures also included a total of $3,884,000 to prevent beach erosion in the north and south shores of Massachusetts.

Other six-year program recommendations were:

Quincy, channel dredging, $450,000; Cape Cod Canal, deepen and widen, $6,714,000; Lynn harbor, deepen channel, $300,000; Cuttyhunk, dredge harbor, $65,000; Taunton river, deepen channel, $800,000; Fall River harbor, widen channel, $42,000.

Jobs Slump In U. S. Set at 4,300,000

10,450,000 Idle Now; Spring Work Due To Aid Situation

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—The business recession has taken a toll of 4,300,000 jobs in the last four months, federal economists estimated today, bringing the nation's unemployed to a total of about 10,450,000.

That total, based on a revision of figures prepared for the President's committee on economic security, is the highest in three years.

After reaching a peak of 15,071,000 in March, 1933, the country's unemployed dwindled to a minimum of 6,132,000 in July, 1937, just before the current recession began.

In October, the unemployed numbered 6,145,000, jumping to 7,117,000 in November, 8,080,000 in December, and 10,181,000 in January.

Regardless of business trends, the federal statisticians expect the coming of spring weather will stimulate seasonal outdoor work sufficiently to offset any new increases in industrial unemployment in the next few months.

Col. Hoyt Dies In N. H. at 78

LACONIA, N. H., March 11 (AP)—Colonel Charles B. Hoyt, 78, of Sandwich, elected Tuesday as a delegate to the constitutional convention, died today at Laconia Hospital.

A native of Sandwich, he served as selectman for 36 years and was a succesful farmer. He served in the Executive Council of Governor John G. Winant and was on the military staff of Governor Batchelder. A former state senator, he was serving his sixth term as state representative.

Luise Rainer, Spencer Tracy, Share Year's Movie Honors

Other Stars Receive Awards for Best Performances

LOS ANGELES, March 11 (INS)—Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy were acclaimed today by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as having made the finest screen performances by stars during 1937.

The best motion picture last year was Warner Brothers' "The Life of Emil Zola," the academy announced in making its tenth annual award of coveted golden statuettes for the best achievements in the diversified fields in the production of celluloid entertainment.

Miss Rainer, winner of the award last year and the only actress to receive it more than once, gained the honor by her performance in M-G-M's "The Good Earth."

Tracy's acting in "Captains Courageous" won him the acclaim of the approximately 15,000 members of the industry who selected the winners.

OTHERS SHARE HONORS

Other awards included:

Best performance by a supporting actor: Joseph Schildraut in "The Life of Emil Zola" (Warner Brothers).

Best achievement in directing: Leo McCarey ("The Awful Truth").

Best written screen play, Norman Reilly Raine, Heinz Herald and Geza Herczeg ("The Life of Emile Zola").

AWARD TO BERGEN

Best achievement in art direction: "Lost Horizon" (Columbia).

Best dance direction: Hermes Pan (RKO).

Best sound recording: "Hurricane."

Short subjects:

Cartoons: "The Old Mill," by Walt Disney.

Best edited film: "Lost Horizon."

Mack Sennett was given a special award for being of the greatest service to the industry during 1937. Another special award, in the form of a wooden statuette, was made to Edgar Bergen for his comedy creation, "Charlie McCarthy," the ventriloquist's dummy who acts as his stooge.

Another special award went to H. Howard Greene, for his color photography in Selznick's "A Star Is Born," while Darryl Zanuck of 20th Century-Fox was given the Irving Thalberg Memorial prize.

Of the five feminine stars nominated for top honor in that division, only Greta Garbo was missing from the celebrity-packed banquet room.

She was far away in Italy, reportedly about to become the bride of Leopold Stokowski, noted orchestra leader.

The others nominated for the Academy Award were:

15,000 CAST VOTES

Runners up among the male stars for the prize given Tracy were Paul Muni, a previous winner, Charles Boyer, Frederic March and Robert Montgomery.

Selection of this year's awards was a drastic departure from procedure in the past. Winners previously were chosen by an academy board.

Occasional dissatisfaction resulted, so this year some 15,000 members of the industry voted on candidates nominated by groups representing the different lines of endeavor in movie making.

The Best

Screen Stars Paid Highest Honors

Luise Rainer with Paul Muni, in one of the scenes of "The Good Earth," an M. G. M. screen play. It was her fine work in this picture that gave Miss Rainer the 1937 academy award.

Harvard Man Asserts 100 Reds Can Wreck Regime in Crisis

One hundred Communist deputies—"a small, beautifully organized minority"—may wreck ex-Premier Leon Blum's chance to assemble a cabinet in France strong enough to stand up in the face of Europe's armed crisis.

This opinion came today from Professor George Doriot of the Harvard School of Business Administration, in commenting on the situation in France following the resignation of Premier Camille Chautemps' government.

Reiterating statements he made in a Philadelphia address two weeks ago, Professor Doriot declared that France was run by a relatively small group of insiders with the well-drilled Communist faction taking orders from Moscow.

He emphasized that these "insiders" hold the potent balance of power in the constant shifts from group to group in France.

REDS HOPE FOR WAR

Professor Doriot charged that the dictates of Moscow have led the French Communists to foment an anti-German warlike spirit, in the hope of plunging Europe into war.

"I myself was born and brought up near Belfort, only a short distance from the German border," the Harvard professor declared, "and the feeling there, according to letters from friends, is much less anti-German than in the south of France where they have never seen a German.

"We realize the hopeless situation Germany was thrown into by the Versailles treaty which is the real reason Hitler has been able to succeed there."

Professor Doriot declared that most Frenchmen "would welcome any well-formulated national policy which is what has been lacking up to now."

BLUM OPPORTUNITY

The professor declared that Blum has a great opportunity for leadership if he can persuade some groups from the right side of the Chamber of Deputies to join him.

"The Communists may even desert Blum, thereby bringing about his fall in short order," he added.

"The great fault of the Blum Popular Front," Professor Doriot stated, "was that it told people they could get things without work. It falsely encouraged the working classes to hope for something for nothing when the one thing France needs is work.

TELLS "LOAFING" PERIL

"By contrast with the prevailing philosophy of loafing in France," he said, "we have in Germany and Italy two nations whose governments urge them to work, work, work.

"If it is true that France must eventually try its strength against Germany—and I don't think it is necessarily true at all—what chance would 40,000,000 people have whose leaders have taught them to loaf, against 65,000,000 dedicated to hard work?"

The Rise and Fall Of Government By Violence

Union Men Among Citizens Who Voted To Overthrow Labor Terrorism

By GEORGE W. LYNN

SEATTLE, Wash., March 11—This city, by an overwhelming vote of its citizens of whom the majority, themselves, are in organized labor's ranks, has overthrown its so-called labor government and today looks toward a new era of peace and prosperity.

And what has happened here after two years of terrorism, destruction and bewilderment, keynotes a great, determined trend for law and order in the name of all the people throughout the entire Pacific northwest.

Tacoma, like Seattle, has elected a new mayor pledged to end labor racketeering, and the state of Oregon, with Portland in the van, is wiping our gangsterism and "beef" squad activities by swift detection, conviction and imprisonment of the guilty.

ULTIMATUM GIVEN

These are the manifestations of an ultimatum from a great majority of citizens who represent not only employer interests, but labor, both organized and unorganized, as well. Election returns have proved that.

Seattle's story is typical of the entire northwest situation. It is a story of terrorism, destruction, wanton attacks and bewilderment to hundreds of thousands of people within the borders of this city, and the state of Washington—all in the name of labor.

In every labor movement there are irresponsible, usually unidentified, vicious few who seek to intimidate employers and terrorize employes by coercion, strong-arm tactics and sometimes brutal violence.

These plug-uglies, these gangsters and these beef squads have kept Seattle in terrorism for years.

They have beaten up innocent citizens, overturned trucks, bombed places of business, thrown acid on materials and defied the law.

They have destroyed confidence, they have destroyed progress, and they have made a mockery of law and order.

DISREGARD OF LAW

They have stifled progress, put fear into the hearts of all citizens and—ruling by violence—have made a mockery of law, order and decency.

That's why Seattle went into revolt this week, tossed a "labor mayor" overboard and decided it would restore law and order to this community immediately.

When school children, given more to harmless fun than viciousness, come to the realization that their teacher is indifferent, looking out the window, or living in the midst of day dreams far away, they begin to shoot paper wads, pull each other's hair—sometimes even refuse to answer questions, enter into fist fights.

Two years ago a man by the name of John F. Dore ran for mayor in Seattle, and having the endorsement of Dave Beck, labor leader, was elected.

The beef squads moved in with the bomb throwers, the truck-overturners, the blackjackers and the racketeers.

What has happened during those two years is a story of tragedy, destruction and human suffering that is almost unbelievable to have happened in any American city.

But two years of it were enough—more than enough for Seattle!

A few weeks ago Mayor Dore ran for re-election on his "labor record" at the primaries, and endorsed by AFL—Dave Beck.

In the same primaries were two other candidates.

One was Lieutenant Governor Victor A. Meyers, endorsed by, and known as, the unofficial CIO candidate.

He had the active support of the most prominent CIO leaders.

The third candidate was a vigorous, honest, enthusiastic young fellow, Arthur B. Langlie and endorsed by no group of labor leaders.

DEFEAT FOR CIO

He promised to enforce the law, tackle the immediate problems of this city, and be mayor to all citizens, but to no one special group.

In the primaries he defeated Dore, and polled more votes than both Dore and Meyers combined.

The defeat in the primaries was a direct defeat for Dave Beck, most powerful voice of the A. F. of L., in the great northwest, and Dore's sponsor.

The defeat which young Langlie administered to Lieut. Governor Meyers in the general election this week was a defeat for Harry Bridges and the CIO.

Seattle is a "labor city." The great majority of its citizens belong to unions of the CIO or A. F. of L.

Arthur B. Langlie could not have been elected by his tremendous majority unless a great number of the rank and file of these honorable and earnest union-belonging citizens had voted for him.

Their vote was a vote in protest against terrorism, gangsterism, intimidation and lawlessness.

The union card-holding, working class citizens of Seattle have told labor leaders—both A. F. of L. and CIO—to clean their houses of goons—and do it now.

They have told law enforcement agencies that they want the law enforced in Washington, as it is being enforced in Oregon, to protect all citizens against violence.

Missing Judge's Car Found in Garage Here

N. H. Jurist Reported In Bus Terminal; Amnesia Feared

Adding further mystery to his disappearance, the sedan driven by Associate Judge Harry W. Peyser, 50, of Portsmouth, N. H. municipal court was found by state police today in a downtown garage.

The grey-haired justice was last seen shortly after 2 p. m. yesterday when he waved a cheery greeting to his nephew, Lawrence Peyser, in Main street, Portsmouth, while en route to Exeter, N. H., to check a land title.

Detective Lieutenants Joseph L. Ferrari and John F. Dempsey of the state police found the car in a canvass of Boston garages. They began an immediate check of all local hotels.

FEAR JUDGE ILL

At the same time the family of the missing judge expressed the belief that he was an amnesia victim.

Informed that his car had been found, members of the family revealed that Winifred Claus, 20, of Union street, Portsmouth, had told them she had seen the judge in a Park square bus terminal yesterday afternoon when she arrived in Boston to take a music lesson.

The judge's son, Frank W. Peyser, a Rochester, N. H., lawyer and Warren Peyser, a cousin, left for Boston to aid police in their search.

According to the state police, the machine was parked in the garage at 4:45 p. m. yesterday. The name of Wentworth was given the garage attendant and police said this was the jurist's middle name.

OCCUPANT SEEN LATER

The attendant, Herbert Winslow, later told police that he saw the occupant of the car on Eliot street, near a Park square bus terminal.

Police Chief Leonard Hewitt of Portsmouth declared Judge Peyser had withdrawn $50 from a bank before leaving for Exeter, 14 miles away. A check revealed the judge did not visit the Exeter register of deeds.

Greta 'Too Shy' For Interview

Says That Reporters Embarrass Her

ROME, March 11 (INS)—Greta Garbo today refused to grant newspapermen an interview because, she explained to an intermediary, "I can't be myself" with reporters.

"I cannot meet the reporters," she told the press spokesman at Ravello. "They embarrass me. I can never bring myself to be myself."

Miss Garbo is to be married shortly to Leopold Stokowski, famed symphony conductor, at Taormina. The actress is reported to have told a visitor at Cimbrone today that after the ceremony she and Stokowski will honeymoon at Capri.

Temples Set Shirley N. E. Tour Plans

HOLLYWOOD, March 11 (INS)—With fear and trembling, the Temple family decided today to take Shirley on a vacation tour through New York, New England and a corner of Canada.

They will leave June 1, Mrs. Temple tells me, or as soon afterwards as Shirley completes "Little Miss Broadway" and one more picture.

"The wisest thing would be to stay at home," declares the mother of Hollywood's No. 1 child star, "but we like to travel like other people. Shirley wants to see New York and so do I. We want to go up in the Empire State building and to see Niagara Falls.

"We also want to motor through New England and to visit Montreal, where my people came from. If we can find a hideaway in the Maine woods, we'd like to stay there for a while."

What frightens the Temples are the crowds that are likely to be attracted by Shirley. The family will be accompanied by two bodyguards and by at least one publicity man from the studio.

"Shirley will make no personal appearances," says Mrs. Temple. "I dont' believe in them for children and, besides, this is supposed to be a rest."

So far in her travels, Shirley has mode two visits to Honolulu and one to Vancouver and Victoria. In Hawaii, thousands of people gathered in front of her hotel and she had to go out on a balcony and sing "The Good Ship Lollypop."

Jesuits Hold Convocation

VATICAN CITY, March 11 (AP)—The Society of Jesus, the Catholic Church's famed, far-flung missionary organization, today opened its first general convocation in 15 years.

The 171 Jesuit leaders gathered here will devote special attention to reverses suffered by the faith in Germany and in Spain, Jesuit spokesmen said.

The heads of the society usually meet only on the death of the Superior General to elect his successor. There was no indication, however, that the present Superior General, the Very Rev. Vladimir Ledochowski, intended to resign.

Hitler Halts Vote On 'Free Austria'

Schuschnigg Out, German Army Marches Across Border

to support Schuschnigg in any diplomatic action, but to the use of armed force they would not resort.

PLEA SENT TO LONDON

From official sources it was learned that Schuschnigg based his capitulation on his desire to avoid bloodshed.

He had been informed that German troops would march into Austria at once if he persisted in his plan to have 4,500,000 Austrian voters signify at the polls whether or not they wished to retain this nation's sovereignty.

Guido Schmidt, the mayor of Vienna who was responsible for the first Austro-German pact of friendship of July, 1936, was considered a likely successor to Schuschnigg.

CLERICALS WANT ENDER

The Nazis, however, prefer Dr. Arthur Seyzs-Inquart, minister of the interior, who is openly a member of Hitler's clan.

The clericals, on the other hand, prefer Dr. Otto Ender, a former chancellor and one-time governor of Vorarlberg province.

A Nazi-clerical coalition, with the Hitler forces granted at least a fifty-fifty division of power, is exppected to result.

Vienna, full of life and suppressed excitement a few hours ago, was a city of the dead as night fell, except in the huge square before the Opera House, where Hitler's lighted picture was displayed to the crowd.

Nazis singing German songs and shouting "Heil Hitler" were not molested by police.

Schuschnigg's resignation followed a visit from Gauleter Burckel, a Nazi provincial governor who presumably conveyed news of Hitler's ultimatum. Burckel headed a group of provincial officials which made a demarche on the chancellor.

Bloody clashes between Nazis, freed by Hitler from previous restrictions imposed on them, and followers of Schuschnigg's Fatherland Front preceded his resignation.

Schuschnigg's unscheduled speech at Innsbruck, early this week, when he surprised the world and infuriated Hitler by announcing plans for the plebiscite, proved to be his swan-song.

It was thought possible he realized postponement or cancellation and possibly his own resignation were inevitable once the might of Germany was ranged against him. But he chose to go from office still insisting upon a free and untrammeled Austria, vassal to no nation, responsible only to itself.

There was never the slightest doubt of Hitler's anger over Schuschnigg's plans. It reached its climax today when he mobilized his Bavarian army corps and sent it speeding to the border, and followed this by lifting restrictions on Nazi activities in Upper Austria.

Belief was expressed, contrary to reports from Rome, that Hitler's ultimatum made no direct mention of the possibility of military action, but threatened that some decisive action would emerge from another session of the Reichstag which the Fuehrer is ready to convoke.

The ultimatum also demanded immediate cessation of Schuschnigg's negotiations with Austrian Socialists.

Austria Mobilizes 130,000 in Crisis

VIENNA, March 11 (AP)—The war ministry ordered mobilization of 100,000 reserve troops, called 30,000 members of the national guard to immediate duty, and strengthened the guard about Chancellor Schuschnigg early today, in fear for his life.

All policemen, regular soldiers and recruits were instructed to remain in barracks, without even the usual daily one to two hours leave.

This order was given as fresh disorders swept Vienna and other Austrian centers.

Upon Schuschnigg's instructions the 100,000 reserves—unmarried, 23-year-old men with at least ten months service—were ordered to report immediately to their corps commanders for service throughout Austria.

THREAT TO SCHUSCHNIGG

The militiamen — the national guard—must report for duty today.

Schuschnigg's guard was increased after parading Nazis cried "Schuschnigg, watch out! You will meet the fate of Dollfuss!" (assassinated chancellor).

After six hours of wild demonstrations the Vienna police decided to clear the downtown section of all but necessary traffic, but had difficulty with Nazis, who persisted in reforming their groups.

In Innsbruck, police with drawn sabers tried futilely to disperse several hundred Nazis, including unformed S. A. and S. S. men (members of Nazi guard corps).

The police were powerless against superior numbers, and the Nazis were allowed to continue their demonstration, shouting, "We want a free plebiscite!" and "We demand Schuschnigg's resignation!"

500,000 SEEN ON DUTY

Asked whether the intensive precautions meant marital law was being declared, army circles answered:

"It is a matter only of a technical name."

There were no official figures on the total number of troops, police and reserves on protective duty, but a likely figure is 500,000.

These forces have varying equipment, including tanks, machine-guns, howitzers and sabres.

From Salzburg came reports the Austro-German frontier was closed for 90 minutes, leading to a rumor it was done to enable a motorized unit from Berlin to reach the frontier area near Munich.

The nationalist newspaper, Wiener Neueste Nachrichten was confiscated for printing Nazi Minister Hugo Judy's outspoken article on why the Nazis were boycotting the plebiscite.

"We Austrian National Socialists are fighting for indivisibility of the Austrian constitution, and won't permit that the way be opened for a Popular Front and Bolshevism in our dearly beloved fatherland, through disregarding important constitutional principles," Jury wrote.

"The voice promised us in provincial governmental affairs has been refused by provincial governors. Our voice in Fatherland Front affairs has been refused.

"The Berchtesgaden decision to remove discrimination against National Socialists has not been fulfilled. We National Socialists will have no power to judge the freedom of the plebiscite . . . Indeed, anything but an affirmative vote (supporting Schuschnigg against Nazi domination of Austria) already is represented as treason."

French Eye Nazis, Pray For Strength in Crisis

PARIS, March 11 (INS)—While ex-Premier Leon Blum sought to whip together a new cabinet, eyes in governmentless France today turned apprehensively toward the darkened horizon of Austria.

And in all quarters cries arose for termination of political dickering and formation of a government strong enough to deal with the dangerous European situation.

Blum, meanwhile, conferred with Communist and Socialist leaders as he sought to form a cabinet to succeed the resigned government of Camille Chautemps.

France's famous political commentator, Genevieve Tabouis, writes today of an alleged sensational meeting in Berlin's Wilhelmstrasse of German Air Minister Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels and other officials, including high military authorities.

Tabouis added:

"Goering favored marching into Austria quickly, using as a pretext the French ministerial crisis and the new orientation of British foreign policy, saying Austria could be taken in 24 hours."

The aims of German military authorities, Tabouis said, were to "provoke trouble, and then intervene 'to avenge spilled blood.'"

The writer added that after consultation with Hitler it was decided that Germany should not intervene in the Austrian plebiscite, but "give orders that bloody manifestations be held from one end of Austria to the other, in cities, villages and the country."

"Thus," the article added, "one could have occasion to march."

At the same time the French newspaper Figaro, in a first page editorial, declared:

"It is insane not to understand that the exterior situation dominates all at this hour.

"The fate of Europe is at stake in the next four days.

"France tomorrow must have a government which will inspire the respect of Europe."

Meanwhile, amid the Government crisis, German Ambassador von Welczeck caused a sensation by calling at Blum's home and conferring with the Premier-designate. An attempt was made to deny that this visit was official by explaining:

"This is a tardy call to offer condolences for the death of Madame Blum."

Mme. Blum died several weeks ago.

Later the envoy called on former Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos.

Unable to credit the German ambassador's call on Delbos to "condolences," the foreign office said his discussion with the former foreign minister, who is acting as foreign office chief during the governmental hiatus, was concerned with "general topics and the present situation in Austria."

President Hears Of Europe Crisis

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have discussed the troubled situation in central Europe in the past two days, Dr. Hull disclosed today.

The Secretary said that the United States had not made any representations at Berlin to urge moderation upon that government with regard to Austria.

The State Department, watchful for developments in Central Europe, indicated the situation was regarded as serious although probably not dangerous.

Complete reports on developments are being sought from American representatives in Central Europe.

The American legation in Vienna, however, has been without a head since the death of Minister Grenville T. Emmet, September 26.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11 (AP)—The Alcatraz prison warden's office today denied a report that Al Capone, onetime Chicago gang leader, had been returned to his former duties in the prison yard. # Dartmouth Refuses Offer Of Bodies of Mother, Son

PUTNAM, Ct., March 11 (INS)—For sale: The bodies of a 41-year-old mother of eight children and that of her 15-year-old son, to be delivered after death, for $10,000 now; money needed so that her poverty-stricken family can purchase a farm in New Hampshire and settle down to a life of security.

"I don't care what happens to me after I die as long as the youngsters are well cared for," said Mrs. Helen A. Young, the mother, said today in explaining her offer to Dartmouth Medical School.

The strange offer was revealed when Dr. Rolf C. Syvertsen, secretary of the medical school, wrote to the board of selectmen of this town about the matter. He also sent Mrs. Young a letter saying the college could not accept her offer.

Too proud to apply for relief, Mrs. Young decided to write the letter after she got up one cold morning this winter and found there was but five cents in the family purse and only three slices of bread with which to feed her children.

Local relief authorities, who were unaware of the circumstances of the family, immediately investigated the case following notification by Dr. Syvertsen. They learned that since the writing of the letter the husband had obtained a job as night watchman at a mill.

Despite the fact her husband has a job, Mrs. Young said the family is having a hard time to make both ends meet and stated her offer stil stands.

to be held May 14, are for 20 jobs as district superintendents of claims and superintendents of claims.

On April 30, examinations will be held in the forenoon for 265 civil service appointments as examiners of claims. These jobs pay a minimum of $1520 a year. In the afternoon, examinations will be held for 280 jobs as statistical machine operators. These pay a minimum of $960 a year.

Many present job holders are expected to take these tests. They will have to pass them strictly on the basis of ability in order to retain their jobs, however.

202 "UNACCOUNTED FOR"

Representative Bowker has charged that out of 1374 persons employed by the compensation commission, 777 have been holding their jobs through political appointments.

The 565 civil service examinations scheduled, therefore, leave 202 jobs "still to be accounted for."

"Fireworks" are expected at next Monday's hearing before the joint legislative rules committee. This rules committee hearing is a preliminary to Representative Bowker's request for a legislative investigation being referred to the Legislature itself. Bowker has announced that numerous jobholders will be summoned and asked to reveal how and under what circumstances they got their jobs.

Hitler Mobilizes Forces on Border

Germany Commandeers Autos, Buses, Guards All Frontier Highways

MUNICH, March 11 (AP)—Mobilization of German troops in the Seventh Army Corps area near Austria's border was in full swing today. Munich is army corps headquarters.

German troops are moving toward the border carrying pontoons for making bridges and also field artillery, said motorists who encountered them on a highway south of here.

READY TO FORD RIVERS

One motorist said he saw 130 military motor trucks on the road to Salzburg.

Hundreds of motorcycle troops were moving southward.

Motorized engineer detachments carried pontoons, motor boats and other material used in military crossings of wide streams. Numerous commandeered brewery trucks helped carry this material.

Peasants along the highway said this had been "going on all night."

Near the border troops impressed peasants for work and commandeered horses and automobiles.

The border near Salzburg is marked by the rivers Inn, Salzach and Saalach.

Because there was no effort to hide mobilization, Bavarians believed it was not intended actually to send troops into Austria.

SEIZING ALL AUTOS

Evidences of mobilization were the following:

1—Able-bodied men were being called to the colors and their private cars commandeered.

2—Municipal buses and private trucks were requisitioned.

3—Owners were frankly told these vehicles would be used on the Austrian border.

Rumors circulated that Czechoslovakians were moving over the Austrian border to vote in Sunday's plebiscite for independence, and that France also was supporting the anti-Nazi Austrians.

There was known to be a large concentration of troops near Sternberg, 20 miles south of Munich, along one of the main roads into Austria.

Regular army units and brown-shirted S. A. and blackshirted S. S. (Nazi guard units) were moving toward Freilassing, near Salzburg, Garmisch and Fuessen.

Roads out of Munich were under military control.

Trains to the south were still running "for the time being," as railway authorities put it.

The Austrian consul at Munich departed, traveling toward Vienna by automobile early this morning.

Amid rumors that "something was about to happen," military patrols visited beer cellars and cafes, in one case interrupting a circus performance, to call out all uniformed men.

Inquiry at military headquarters brought the reply:

"Merely rather extensive maneuvers."

Mrs. Ryan Again Faints in Trial

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Twenty-one-year-old Patricia Ryan collapsed on the witness stand again today in Bronx county court where she is on trial for slaying her husband, Michael, a New York policeman.

She swayed, then slumped over one arm of the witness chair and appeared to have fainted while under cross-examination as to events leading up to the shooting of Ryan last Halloween night with his service revolver.

Hysterical weeping and fainting of the young defendant, her mother and Ryan's sister forced Judge Lester W. Patterson to call a recess several times previously.

Impatiently, Judge Patterson granted another recess. During the argument Attorney Salomon assisted Mrs. Ryan to sit up and she sipped a glass of water.

Before she collapsed, she denied she had quarreled with Ryan before the slaying because he had not taken her dancing.

Red Prosecutor Asks Death for 19 in Moscow

Only 2 Spared; Capone Mentioned During Bitter Speech

MOSCOW, March 11 (AP)—Death for 19 of the 21 defendants in Soviet Russia's greatest blood purge trial was demanded today by Prosecutor Andrei Y. Vishinsky at the end of a bitter summation of the government's treason and murder charge.

The only two spared from the death demand were the once esteemed Soviet diplomat, Christian Rakovsky and S. A. Bessanoff, a former Russian trade delegate.

For them, Vishinsky demanded 25 years imprisonment.

COMPARES YAGODA, CAPONE

The prosecutor, demanding the life of Genrikh G. Yagoda, compared the once dreaded head of the secret police to Al Capone.

"We can not leave such people alive," he cried. "They can do so in America with Al Capones who kill and kidnap people they want to get out of the way. But Russia, thank God, is not America."

Vishinsky's demand spelled almost certain death for Alexis I. Rykoff, premier of the Soviet Union for nearly 10 years after the death of Nikolai Lenin, and Nikolai Bucharin, chronicler of the Red Revolution—the trial's ranking prisoners.

It was believed also to mean execution for N. N. Krestinsky, once an eminent diplomat; A. P. Rosengolts, one-time commissar of foreign trade; Gregory F. Grinko, former commissar of finance, a group of eminent physicians and fallen industrial and political leaders.

For five and a half hours Vishinsky heaped invective on the group, which he called "this stinking heap of human scum." His whole summation, charging them with treason and murder, was to argue that their destruction would serve world peace and democracy.

Rakovsky and Bessanoff—whose voluble testimony deeply involved the others—had the relief of hearing the maximum prison sentence under Soviet law asked for them.

But the others, their pallor intensified by brilliant arc lights on the prisoners' box, forlornly heard the prosecutor demand they face a firing squad.

EPITHETS FOR BUCHARIN

For Bucharin Vishinsky reserved some of his choicest epithets, declaring:

"I don't know of any other case in the world's history where a spy and traitor tried to cover his crimes with philosophical phraseology."

Bucharin, he asserted, was a "cursed mixture of fox and swine."

The prosecutor connected "an Englishman, Lawrence," with two of the defendants, Faysulla Khodjaieff and Akmal Ikramoff, former officials in the Uzbek Soviet Republic in South Central Asia, declaring "Lawrence" organized espionage in Asia.

He did not say that he referred to the famous T. E. Lawrence of Arabia.

Boy 16 Years Is Girl Again

"George" Hopes She'll Like Feminine Togs

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11 (AP)—Sixteen-year-old Katherine Vines ended today what she said was a lifelong masquerade as a boy and donned feminine attire.

"I hope I'll like being a girl," she said.

Dark-haired Katherine, known to her friends as "George," said she "became a boy" because her mother, Mrs. Stella Vines, already had two girls and wanted a boy.

She was christened as a girl in 1921 in Johnstown, Pa., but grew up wearing boy's clothing and played with boys when the family moved to Chicago.

Two months ago, Chicago school nurses caused her to appear for a physical examination. Her sex became known.

To avoid embarrassment, Nicholas Vines brought his daughter here to live with relatives. The mother and sisters were expected to follow.

Moscow Purge Trial Seen as Stalin Plan To Save Own Neck

Evidence that the Moscow "purge" trials are torture-induced frame-ups, in which the alleged "confessions" produced are brutally extorted for purposes of Stalin's propaganda machine, is cropping up with a rising crescendo in the European press.

Following is the first in a series of dispatches from principal capitals revealing the attitude of skepticism with which all Europe is eyeing the fantastic testimony arrayed in the Moscow trials.

BUDAPEST, March 11—That Joseph Stalin himself was responsible for some of the political murders now laid at the door of the 21 Moscow "traitors" was charged today by Vladimir Krivitzki, former chief of the Soviet secret service.

A witness, he said, of some of the inquisitions leading up to the current trial, Krivitzki is now living in Paris at a secret residence. His charges were published in an interview in the Budapest newspaper.

"I am in possession of conclusive evidence that Stalin personally ordered Sergei Kirov (then Leningrad Communist Chief) to be murdered," said Krivitzki.

"To clear himself of responsibility in the eyes of the Communist masses, he ordered the trial of his political opponents.

"When Henry G. Yagoda, in the course of his investigation of the Kirov murder, discovered Stalin's guilt, there was an attempt made to do awty with the GPU chief which, however, failed.

"From that moment, Stalin hated Yagoda bitterly, because he recognized that Yagoda refused to be a willing tool for Stalin's schemes."

TELLS OF SESSION

Krivitzki said it was also by order of Stalin that Alexei Rykov and Nikolai Bukharin "were called before the central committee of the Communist Party to answer charges of Trotskyism." Rykov was convicted and sent to prison in a previous trial. His fellow-editor, Bukharin, is now on trial.

"I personally participated in that session," Krivitzki said.

"In a state of complete nervous exhaustion, both Rykov and Bukharin appeared before the large desk in which Stalin was sitting. With tears in his eyes and a broken voice Bukharin asserted he never played any role in the Kirov murder.

"Everybody represented on the central committee was deeply moved by the apparent sincerity of Bukharin and his defense—only Stalin remained cold.

SHOUTS DOWN DEFENSE

"Stalin shouted 'that is not a defense worthy of a man of the revolution. You'll have to get me material evidence before I'll believe you.'

" 'Jail will be the best place for you. You'll remain in prison until you furnish the required evidence of your innocence.'

"Two months after that session Yezhov (who succeeded Yagoda as head of the secret police) ordered Yagoda arrested, and all the higher GPU officers under Yagoda 'liquidated.'

"Only Slutzki, chief of the GPU's European organization, was exempted that time, because he had all the secret information wires in his hand.

"SLUTZKI KILLED"

"Just two weeks ago Slutzki's destiny was also fulfilled, when it was bluntly announced that Slutzki 'died unexpectedly.'

"I am perfectly positive, however, that Slutzki was either killed by one of Yezhov's agents, or was compelled to commit suicide."

As for the death of Vyacheslav Menzhinsky, former head of the secret police, and Maxim Gorky, the author, Krivitzki continued:

"I almost firmly believe that Stalin personally ordered that they be killed, because he was the only one in Soviet Russia who could profit by their disappearance from politics.

"Stalin is ruining Russia. His rule will eventually lead to catastrophe.

"Recently no less than 75 per cent of all the leading officials of industrial and mining plants have been arrested.

"The army's most capable officers have either been exiled or executed. Their successors today in the most important military posts are illiterate.

"Stalin's cruelties have a most frightful effect on public life in the Soviet Union.

"The Russian people have been accustomed to endure the most severe hardships, but some day they will not tolerate the Red dictators and the bath of blood any more."

Bay State Faces Federal Penalty

Federal Bureau of Roads officials today considered penalizing Massachusetts a total of more than $2,000,000 for diverting highway funds.

In Washington, it was declared that it would be some time before a decision is made on whether the penalty would be assessed against the State.

Massachusetts apportionment this year is $3,171,423. However, State Public Works Commissioner William F. Callahan recently announced that the Commonwealth may be penalized $1,057,000 for diversion in 1937 and $1,031,000 for this year. Massachusetts is the only one of the six New England States facing such a penalty.

Meanwhile, Senator Bridges of New Hampshire and other New England Congressmen announced opposition to the President's recent proposal that Congress reduce the highway fund by 50 per cent. Such a move, they said, would work hardships on states with extensive highway programs.

Hans Schroeder, second mate of the ship, grabbed a rope, tied it to the dock and lowered himself.

Schroeder attached the rope to McDaniel so that he would be held above the water, then climbed back to the pier. He hauled McDaniel, unconscious, to safety and called East Boston Relief Hospital for an ambulance.

Ask Retirement Of 30 Firemen

Fire Commissioner William A. Reilly today announced he will ask Mayor Tobin to approve an order retiring 30 men who have been members of the fire department for 10 years, but have been unable to do active fire service because of various disabilities.

He said the men have been working in the fire prevention bureau and the maintenance department, but stated these positions could be filled by civilians at lower salaries than the $2100 paid regular firemen. The retired men will be given half pay, under the plan.

The commissioner indicated a "youth movement" may be started in the department, when he pointed out that the average age of firemen is 47 years, and the average age of fire officers is more than 55 years.

Sen. Townsend Hits Deal as 'Failure'

Declares Business in Worst Slump; Warns of 'Reorganization' Plan

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)—Roosevelt's "new economic philosophy has failed," Senator John G. Townsend, Jr., (R.) of Delaware, today declared in urging his Senate colleagues to defeat the government reorganization bill.

Putting full responsibility for the nation's economic situation directly upon President Roosevelt, Townsend pleaded with his colleagues "not to make another mistake and give him dictatorial powers sought in the reorganization bill."

Townsend, a country banker and farmer from Delaware, addressed the Senate for the first time since the New Deal took over the government.

BLAMES NEW DEAL

He said he decided to speak "because business is now in a worse tail-spin than it was immediately after the 1929 stock market crash."

Tracing what he described as "President Roosevelt's failures" including 1932 campaign pledges to reduce cost of government and the subsequent increase of $15,000,000,000 in the national debt, Townsend said:

"I cannot too strongly urge that this body give thought to the facts to which I have called attention, in its consideration of this reorganization bill.

"My investigations show that the present administration possesses no special wisdom of its own and no magic powers to deal with economic problems or with the expenditure of money.

"Let us not now add to the mistakes we have made in the past by giving to the Executive the additional powers which are sought in the reorganization bill."

SEN. JOHN G. TOWNSEND

NEW SLUMP SHOWN

He accused New Dealers of using a "depression dodger" in applying the term "recession" to the situation. He presented federal reserve board, labor department statistics and other government figures, which, he asserted:

"Shows the slump in business since last October was sharper than that which followed the collapse of securities prices in 1929.

"What is the situation today?" he demanded. "Are we pulling out of the tailspin?" The answer is no.

"The figures for January show some flattening out, some improvement even, in certain lines of activity, yet in February the downward trend was resumed.

Reorganization Bill Protest Grows Here

Patriotic and Civic Groups Support Wheeler Drive

Patriotic and civic organizations of Massachusetts today rallied to the cause of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana anad other independent legislators who have voiced their opposition to the New Deal's government reorganization bill.

Named "more dangerous" than the Supreme Court bill, the new program provided briefly that:

1—The President be given the power to reorganize all but 15 federal bureaus, with a two-thirds vote of Congress necessary for veto.

2—That the national civil service commission of three men be replaced with a single administrator, who would have the powers of "a dictator."

3—That the budget director and the auditor general replace the comptroller-general, who has blocked many New Deal financial measures in the past.

4—That a "secretary of welfare" be added to the President's cabinet.

5—That the President be given six executive assistants.

OPPOSITION ASSERTED

Miss Grace Gay of Malden, high official nominated as the next national president of the Daughters of the Revolution, said that her organization was unalterably opposed to the proposal, on the grounds that it had been termed "unconstitutional."

"The state and the national orders of the Daughters of the Revolution are firmly opposed to this measure," said Miss Gay, "and I feel sure they will oppose it with all the power at their command."

Senator Wheeler, with other Democrats and with many Republicans, have opposed the measure on entirely non-party lines.

Admitting the advisability of some sort of reorganization program, they have united in assailing the "unconstitutionality of the bill that resides in the attempt to take from Congress and give to the President the right to reorganize the executive setup of the government."

Also under fire is the threat inherent in the bill to disturb the nation's 50-year-old civil service system and to put in its place a "dictatorship"; and the idea of abolishing the position of the comptroller-general.

BACKS WHEELER FIGHT

Mrs. Alice Dixon Bond, president of the Women's Professional Club, said she was "most definitely against any such bill and highly in sympathy with Senator Wheeler's fight."

"I feel that this bill tends to establish even more of a dictatorship in this country," she said, "and that it will give President Roosevelt even more power.

"If we are ever to get out of the slough in which we are now wallowing, we must return to our earlier principles of government.

"Every clubwoman should read the papers; and on affairs of this nature should make her voice known by writing to her representative in Washington."

VOTE IS WAITED

Her sentiment was echoed by the words of other patriotic association heads.

"The American Legion has always stood against anything that threatens our Constitution," said Raymond R. McEvoy, state commander of the legion, "though I cannot take a position in this matter for the reason that the Legion will not take a stand on a legislative matter without a convention vote."

Mrs. Arnold Estelle of Springfield, president of the Massachusetts American Legion Auxiliary, said the auxiliary would follow the Legion itself in the matter.

"Of course the auxiliary has always stood for constitutionality in government just as has the legion," she concluded.

Roosevelt Sifts Charges in TVA Quarrel

Seeks Full Facts as Bickering Members Of Board Gather

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt, sitting in judgment on his quarreling Tennessee Valley authority directorate, opened "court" today by asserting he had a "responsibility" to determine whether "grave charges" made by them against each other were borne out by the facts.

"I have a responsibility," he said at the start o fa conference with the three directors, "to determine whether or not the facts bear them (the charges) out and thereupon to take such action as may seem appropriate."

Periodic stenographic transcripts of the unusual showdown meeting were furnished newspapermen as the President's conference with Chairman A. E. Morgan and Directors David E. Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan proceeded.

BELIEVE IN TVA ACT

Chairman Morgan replied "I certainly do," when the President opened the questioning by asking if it were correct that all members of the board believed in the feasibility and wisdom of the TVA act, as is required by the law creating the "yardstick" power authority.

H. A. Morgan and Lilienthal, the board majority which has lined up against Chairman Morgan in the TVA's internal controversy, also replied "Yes" to the same question.

The two quarreling factions of the Tennessee Valley Authority board arrived separately at the White House for the showdown conference.

SMILE AND POSE

All were smiling, and posed agreeably for photographers at the White House door.

Asked whether he held to his intention not to resign because of the bitter dispute which has split the TVA board, Chairman Morgan said, "You don't say anything going in."

His remark referred to the usual practice of discussing a conference with the President only after it is concluded.

The TVA conference was the only scheduled presidential engagement for the rest of the day.

The President called for facts—no opinions—to support charges the directors have made against each other since their three-year-old differences developed into a public quarrel two weeks ago.

QUIZ BOTH SIDES

Roosevelt was expected to ask Chairman Morgan the basis of his assertion that Congress should investigate the TVA in the interest of "decency" in government.

On the other side, he wanted to know from Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan the grounds for their charge that the chairman had obstructed the TVA program.

General Johnson Says:

'COLONEL' IS MISFIT

James OK As Aide

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11—This column didn't join in the criticism of Jimmy Roosevelt's appointment as secretary to the President. It is a peculiarly personal relationship. There was no one else so well-fitted. The job of President is such a tough one that an obvious need for a particular person should not be left unfilled merely because that person is a son.

HUGH JOHNSON

Nepotism—the use of an office to load the public payrolls with relatives and friends—is a great evil if the selections are made regardless of merit and solely on relationship. The notorious San Francisco Mayor Schmitz appointed a terrible heel to high office.

He was defended on the ground that the Emperor Caligula appointed his favorite horse to be aedile. The critic's answer was:

"Yes, but Caligula appointed a whole horse."

Merit and fitness are the real tests and Jimmy has shown both.

But you can't say that of Jimmy serving with troops as lieutenant-colonel of marines. It was all right when he was appointed to the reserves and called to active duty to be aide to the President.

That was merely to get him a salary for appropriate non-military services when there was no other legal way to do it. Dressing quaint little Doctor Sawyer up in a brigadier-general's uniform so that he could be paid to prepare his "pukes and pills" for President Harding was a precedent.

But it would have been different if General Sawyer had been ordered to command a brigade. That would have been something like ordering General Craig to perform an appendix operation. The military calling is a profession. It takes long years of experience to fit a man to command a regiment. A very few natural geniuses there have been like Nathan Bedford Forrest but, for every one of them, the pages of history have been drenched with the blood of helpless soldiers sacrificed to the inexperience of amateur commanders.

It is an affront to the military profession to put a man, with no more military experience than Santa Claus, into a lieutenant-colonel's uniform and send him into the field with troops. That rank rates a battalion or a regiment. No man in the regular service aspires to do that without at least ten years' training and experience.

Jimmy was serving in a sham war where nobody could be hurt. But what went on in the hearts of veteran officers outranked by a lad who doesn't know how to take a corporal's squad across the road? In other words, Jimmy didn't lead because he was 1-10th as good a soldier as any first-class private but because he was a Roosevelt.

Our army used to be cursed with that sort of thing. It was responsible for most of the disasters of both the Civil and Spanish-American Wars.

Under Woodrow Wilson it was entirely wiped out and has never since appeared. In both the army and navy there is complete democracy and no way to get to the top without knowing your job, working at it and excelling in it.

This may seen a small instance of departure—perhaps inadvertent—but it is a departure and the effect of such things on the morale of a military force is simply incalculable. If all members of an army know that performance is the only thing that counts, they all will concentrate on performance.

If it is advertised that there is a quicker, easier way, the performers tend to say, "What's the use?"

The slickers and slackers will rise to the top and politics and intrigue, rather than devotion and loyalty, will activate the forces. That is the quickest known path to military dissolution and defeat.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—When President Roosevelt hoisted the stars and stripes over the Canton and Enderby Islands in the mid-Pacific, most newspaper dispatches predicted a diplomatic battle with the British.

Inside fact, however, is that the British had been notified in advance and were acquiescent. While they have not yet given a formal O. K. to American sovereignty, American use of the islands is in line with the general plan of closer Anglo-American co-operation in the Pacific.

The islands are important, not only as stepping-stones along the air route to Australia, but as a junction where sky-lines of the future will turn off for Singapore, the giant British naval outpost in the Far East.

Note—Significant of the importance of the Pacific islands is the fact that the navy began laying in extra supplies of fuel in Samoa several months ago. Also Dr. Ernest Gruen, director of insular affairs of the Interior Department, recently took a five months' cruise among the islands.

IN TENDER HANDS—At the Washington banquet of the Kansas Society popular Senator Arthur Capper regaled the crowd with a story about his operation.

"Just before they put me under the ether," Capper related, "the doctors went into a huddle. They seemed to be very concerned about something and I got a bit uneasy. Finally, the surgeon who was to do the operating came over and said they were ready to start.

"I said I was all set, too, but before he began I wanted to remind him that there were only 16 Republicans left in the Senate and that he should exercise his greatest skill and care. 'Doctor,' I said, 'you know if anything happens to me there is a Democratic governor sitting in Topeka and that would mean a Democratic appointee.'"

"His reply to me was, 'Senator, have no fears; I fully understand your feelings in this matter. I came from a long line of Republicans myself.'"

TVA PROBE—Although the odds favor a TVA probe, it is by no means a certainty.

Actually there is a lot more noise on Capitol Hill than real demand for an investigation. The hullabaloo is coming entirely from a small group of TVA foes.

Most of the rank-and-file in Congress are completely indifferent, while the President and the Democratic floor leaders are definitely opposed to an investigation. All the uproar, they claim, is being pumped up by utility interests which have failed to stop the TVA in the courts and now are trying to cripple it with an investigation.

This is Senator George Norris' opinion also. He considers a probe unnecessary, but offered his resolution for a Federal Trade Commission airing because he figured the big power companies would get scared. And they were—until the fulminating outbreaks from Chairman Arthur E. Morgan and the demand of his two colleagues that he resign revived the dying embers. Now there is a good chance that a probe will be ordered.

Reason for this is the intense feeling in inner Administration circles against Dr. Morgan.

The New Dealers feel that an investigation may open the way to get rid of him. Roosevelt discussed this with floor leaders the other day, suggesting that formal charges be filed against Morgan in an ouster proceedings.

But he was strongly advised against this because it would look like an effort to squelch the dissenter. The leaders told the President that the best way to show up Morgan was to put him on an investigating griddle.

Note—The demand from his colleagues that he resign gave Morgan a dose of his own medicine. Two years ago he vigorously opposed the reappointment of Director David Lilienthal, threatening to quit if Roosevelt renamed him.

MERRY-GO-ROUND—Barred by the state constitution from running himself, ex-Governor Gene Talmadge of Georgia is reported to be considering a "Ma Ferguson" by putting his wife into the field for the governorship . . . Apparently distressed by the critical "press" they received on the recent mass reception staged for High Commissioner Paul McNutt, his managers have called in a publicity agent to handle the big dance being given for the Indianian this week . . . Unable to find suitable instructors among the inmates of the Federal Industrial Reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, the bureau of prisons is asking Congress for funds to hire professional teachers . . . When RFC Chairman Jesse Jones recently went to Florida for a winter vacation he travelled on the private car of Henry W. Anderson, Richmond lawyer and co-receiver of the railroad. The RFC is one of the largest holders of railroad securities.

A REPORTER AT THE PAPAL COURT

by THOMAS B. MORGAN

40,000 See Pontiff As He Takes Over Highest Church Power

Thomas B. Morgan describes the coronation of Pope Pius XI, most elaborate investiture ceremony in all the world—more dazzling and colorful than that of the coronation of the King of England.

CHAPTER 6

On the same day that he was elected, Pius XI retained Cardinal Gasparri as his Secretary of State. He also continued in office practically all the appointees of Benedict XV. De Samper was re-appointed major-domo; Caccia-Dominioni kept his post as master of the household; Borgongini-Duca and Pizzardo remained as papal Substitute-Secretaries of State.

Splendor

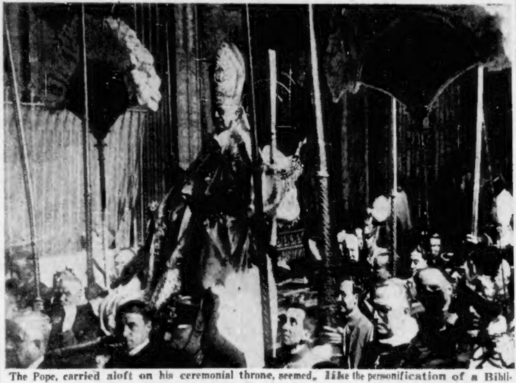
Pope Pius XI Invested



The Pope, carried aloft on his ceremonial throne, seemed, like the personification of a Biblical Pharaoh, a mass of richness in gold and white, the precious mitre on his head. Above him was held the rich canopy in cloth of gold while two huge fans of ostrich feathers enhanced the splendor of the scene.

A hundred or more officials, both lay and ecclesiastical, whose terms depended on the pleasure of the Pope, were re-confirmed in their posts.

The purple robes came back and immediately raised the gloom. The Apostolic palaces regaled in papal splendor. The new Pope was reigning. The pleasant scene smiled down upon the reinstated prelates. Once again they luxuriated in contentment that they were on the road for another long period of tranquility and security during good behavior, with a well-merited promotion in the offing.

The Pope set his coronation for the following Sunday, February 12. This rite stands as one of the greatest investiture ceremonies in all the world. It is even more dazzling and more colorful than that of the coronation of the King of England. All the fabulous riches in sacred vestments, holy vessels and pontifical jewels are brought out in the elaborate function occasioned by the placing of the gem-studded tiara upon the Pope's head.

40,000 AT RITES

On Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, St. Peter's was filled with a crowd estimated at 40,000. All the papal soldiery were in full dress uniforms, stationed at various places throughout the huge edifice. Cardinal Merry del Val, as the arch-priest of the basilica, awaited at the entrance surrounded by his canons.

The great procession consisting of a thousand priests, bishops, archbishops, patriarchs and cardinals began to move. The Pope, carried aloft on his ceremonial throne, seemed, like the personification of a biblical Pharaoh, a mass of richness in gold and white, the precious mitre on his head. Above him was held the rich canopy in cloth of gold while two huge fans of ostrich feathers enhanced the splendor of the scene.

Just as this majestic picture entered, Cardinal Merry del Val genuflected and reached to kiss the Pontiff's ring as a sign of welcome into the basillica. A band of silver trumpets in the balcony above the entrance sounded the papal fanfare which continued until the throne with its richly-garbed occupant arrived halfway to the papal altar. The Sixtine Choir here began the processional Tu es Petrus especially written for the entrance of the Pontiff and only sung at functions at which the Pope personally officiates. It is the Pope's anthem.

The Swiss Guards surpassed all the other armed forces with the romance of their uniforms. Each Swiss Guard was attired in medieval armor, every piece of which had been handed down from father to son for the last three centuries. A detachment of them were in the procession. There were several about the throne. Two carried the "shining swords" of the Papacy, each sword pointed upward and about two yards long, one having a smooth edge and the other a corrugated edge like a saw.

MAGNIFICENT GEMS

Several tiaras, each presented to former Popes to commemorate some historic occasion, were carried by prelates. They were studded with precious stones that scintillated with the light which filled the basilica. Other prelates carried the papal mitres, worked in gold and set with jewels. One was especially resplendent with sapphires, rubies and diamonds.

The tiara to be used in the ceremoney was carried nearest the throne on a rich velvet cushion by a pontifical chaplain in purple robes and escorted by two Swiss Guards. The keeper of the papal jewels carried the jeweled clasps, rings and buckles.

Just as the elevated throne reached the great papal altar, which in St. Peter's is situated at the intersection of the nave and transept, a ceremonier in lace rochet genuflected three times. He took from a table near the altar a handful of flaxen oakum saturated with olive oil and placed it upon a short silver staff. With a small lighted torch he touched the oakum, which was consumed in a flash of flame, then in a clear tenor voice which carried throughout the whole basilica he chanted:

"Pater Sancte, sic transit gloria mundi! (Holy Father, so passes away the glory of the world!)"

Slowly the throne was carried into the apse, where the Pope descended and was assisted to another throne on the steps of the altar of the cathedral. Here began a series of intonations, in which he and the cardinal-deacons participated. They were invocations to give the pontiff strength and wisdom in the administration of his office. The pallium was then imposed upon him and fastened by three golden clasps. The cardinal-deacons then incensed him in preparation for the mass.

IN ANCIENT CEREMONY

Here he received the service of obedience of the cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops and bishops. The cardinals approached the throne and kissed the slippered foot, his hand and cheek. They were followed by the patriarchs, the archbishops and bishops who kissed the foot and the right knee. Mitered abbots were limited to kissing the foot. The Litany of the Coronation was then recited.

During the mass and forming part of the ceremony is the "testing of the wine," a medieval rite which originated perhaps in the fear of poison. Before the Pope took the wine it was first sipped by the papal sacristan, and later in the ceremony Prince Ruspoli in the uniform of "Attendant at the Papal Throne" approached the altar and knelt. A white and gold mantle was placed upon him. The Pontiff administered a sip from the sacred chalice to him. He then rose and returned to his place at the throne.

When the mass ended, the papal procession was reformed and the enthroned Pontiff was carried to a velvet-covered dais in front of the high altar before the tomb of St. Peter. Cardinals Bisleti and Billot ascended the dais, the latter carrying the tiara. Reciting the formula, Cardinal Bisleti removed the mitre. Intoning another formula, Cardinal Billot placed the tiara upon the Pope's head.

From the moment that Achille Ratti uttered the decisive word "accepto" he was at home—the Vatican palaces, the robes, the daily routine, the daily decisions, great occasions, small occasions were encompassed as if he had always been Pope. He started to work immediately. Since his was an office burdened with ceremony, he had to follow forms and procedure. Figuratively, however, he took off his coat, tucked up his sleeves and from that first day it was work, work, work.

HIS ARDUOUS SCHEDULE

The long hours which were his habit continued. Promptly at 9 o'clock on the morning of February 7 he received Cardinal Gasparri and began to restore to completeness the huge church organization, shaken and in suspense after the death of Benedict XV. He received the heads of congregations, members of his cabinet in the civic sense. It was incessant labor from 9 until 2 in the afternoon, picking up all the loose ends and welding them into one organic whole.

The lunch was meagre, always taken alone in the tradition of a Pontiff's lot. A brisk walk in the afternoon from 3 to 5 followed, and then work was resumed again to continue until 9 o'clock.

He had come to the papal throne before automobiles were introduced into the Vatican grounds. Before him, it was the custom to drive the Pope in a closed carriage in the gardens for a daily airing. On the second day of his pontificate when he descended for this afternoon outing the papal coachman asked him where he wished to go. This surprised and somewhat displeased him as he had anticipated the drive not as a diversion but as conveyance to a place to walk. This promenade was for him a regular daily physical exercise, a necessity without variety in his limited territory, as the gardens were the only place he could walk since he was still "the prisoner."

"Where can we go?" he curtly asked the coachman implying that it was no mere ceremonial drive.

"There is the picture gallery and library," replied the embarrassed coachman.

"We do not take our walks from either pictures or books," coldly drawled the Pope.

Promptly the horses were whipped up and the carriage drove off to the gardens. Every day, unless the weather was too vehement, Achille Ratti went there. His walks were not leisurely meandering strolls but spirited heel-and-toe spurts which he had practiced in his mountaineering career. Again and again he circled the gardens, marching up and down the limited and abrupt declivities which comprise the historic hill of Mons Vaticanus. He always covered three or four miles a day.

IN PERSONAL COMMAND

In Rome it was not an uncommon sight to see a cardinal, accompanied by a secretary, wandering unconcernedly through the Villa Borghese or the Villa Doria for an airing. It would have been unique, however, to see a cardinal perform a heel-and-toe march for exercise. But in the Vatican gardens the Pope had brought a new spirit to the somberness which centuries had impregnated in the atmosphere.

In the palaces too there was now movement. Every chief of congregation was ordered to report to the Pontiff personally. The number of audiences which ordinarily formed the routine administration was doubled.

Pius XI was to be informed on all branches of the Church and he personally was to make the decisions when important matters of policy were in debate. He set out to keep a tight rein everywhere and he maintained it.

My first private audience with Pius XI occurred on June 18, 1922, four months after he had ascended the throne. By that time he had completely reorganized many of the congregations and had set the course which the Holy See was to take in the face of the world situation then prevailing.

There were threatening and troublous signs everywhere. Russia was in the midst of its relentless persecution; Mexico was in turmoil; in France, there was the "Action Francaise." Spain was showing signs of inquietude which was to involve the Church and develop into civil war thirteen years later. There was trouble in Ireland and minor difficulties in South America and in the smaller countries of Europe.

It was noon and hot and I was attired in a full-dress suit. Though elsewhere this would seem an anomaly at mid-day, it was common in Rome and plain to everyone that the man in the dress suit was going to see the Pope. I entered by the dience bronze doors holding the audience card in my hand. It was this card, easily discernible from the cards for public audiences, which drew a squad of Swiss Guards to attention and exacted the halberd salute.

WAITING WITH GUARDS

Up the stairs to the courtyard of St. Damasus the card received the salute of the gendarmes, and from there on to the Clementine Hall on the third floor gendarmes and Swiss Guards alternated in clicking heels and clanking halbreds.

Received in the papal antechamber by the chief usher, I was introduced to two chamberlains whom I had never before seen. They were not permanent members of the court but were present that day to perform their periodic duties as camerieri segreti. One was Italian and the other was German. They each wore a simple uniform—gold-braided tunic, trousers with a yellow stripe—similar to a diplomatic uniform. Each clutched an unsheathed ceremonial sword in his left hand.

They asked me whether I knew the prescribed ceremonial, and I replied that I had been there before though this was the first time since Pius XI began to reign. They were relieved and we waited in the large throne room. Later they invited me into the street antechamber which I remembered as the room in which Benedict XV lay in state. There we talked.

They would go in and out toward the Clementine Hall. Men in dress suits and women in veils also were coming but they were never brought as far as the secret antechamber. There were about twenty in the large throne room now. Other rooms had more. These were the semi-private audiences. Public audiences were also being prepared in the Clementine Hall and Consistory Hall.

The place was somber and quiet, reverent in ceremony. The chamberlains and I mitigated the stiffness by occasional allusions to the heat, the Pope's heavy workaday, his superb health, and the fact that he was in council with an important Italian bishop, which was keeping everyone waiting.

CALLED TO SEE POPE

I appeared to be the only layman scheduled for private audience that day. The Pope was talking with the bishop in the library, where he habitually stays. Presently the bishop emerged and passed through the secret antechamber, his countenance heavy with what must have been weighty matters discussed with the Holy Father.

The Pope's secretary, Monsignor Confalonieri, accompanied the bishop through several rooms and then returned to the library. Monsignor Caccia-Dominioni then came to greet me.

He waited a moment until Confalonieri came out from the library to tell him that the Pontiff was ready for the extraordinary audiences of that day, meaning those out of the regular routine. Monsignori Caccia-Dominioni and Confalonieri invited me into the little throne room which was situated between the secret antechamber and the library. There I was asked to wait. I sat in a stiff medieval armchair alongside the throne. They went back into the library.

I could hear them talking with the Pope as the door was open. For me it was a great occasion. I was to be the first newspaperman in the whole world to be received in private audience by Pius XI.

I sat there fidgety in the heat and dress suit but almost forgetful of that discomfiture. I reflected on what the Pope might tell me. It was forbidden to ask him questions. The Pope must choose his own line in the talk.

My forehead was moist and so were the palms of my hands. I was continually using my handkerchief. I was not so nervous as I was anxious.

The Life of Franklin D. ROOSEVELT

by

EMIL LUDWIG

The greatest present-day biographer

EMIL LUDWIG is known and read by millions in America and abroad. He is the greatest modern biographer of the world's great men. His genius lies in his ability to make clear how and why great men rise to eminence—the social and psychological forces that produce the figures who tower above history's pages. Ludwig showed the world a new Lincoln, he revealed Napoleon as no one had known him before, he told the truth about Mussolini.

Now he writes his timeliest, most exciting story. He gives you the most searching study of Franklin D. Roosevelt ever written. He tells the complete story of the private individual and the public figure. He shows why millions of Americans turned to Roosevelt as the man of the hour, and why his policies have produced stormy controversy.

GET A CAR YOU'LL BE PROUD TO OWN AND DRIVE

THINK WHAT IT MEANS TO SAVE SO MUCH MONEY ON A BETTER LOOKING, SWEETER RUNNING, MORE MODERN CAR

Outside of the actual cash savings which National Used Car Exchange Week offers—the genuine opportunities to buy at rock-bottom prices—what's the outstanding news angle of this great event? Undoubtedly it is the discovery by owners of old cars that cars built in the last few years have improved more than they dreamed!

It's a real thrill to take the wheel of one of the many 1937, '36 or '35 cars included in this sale—and discover how a modern car handles—how much more pleasure it offers. Get ready for spring with a car that brings real pride of ownership—modern style—smooth, powerful performance—roomy bodies and luggage space—safe brakes—quieter operation—better economy—big tires—modern riding comfort . . . all yours at prices far below those of several months ago! Many of these cars are backed by dealer guarantees. You'll find a wide variety of great bargains on display—thoroughly reconditioned, clean and attractive—offering thousands of miles of first-class modern transportation.

You may not even need cash to make the switch. Your present car may cover the down-payment on the car you want. Balance on easy terms. If you have no car to trade you can still take advantage of the low down-payments and easy terms during this sale.

These bargains are GOING FAST. DON'T DELAY UNTIL THE BEST SELECTIONS ARE SNAPPED UP! National Used Car Exchange Week ends this Saturday night, March 12.

Amidst the excitement Baby PETER WINSLOW GRAFTON complains that his prized "elephant" stamp must have "b-blew" away. Others connected with the household are BARNARD GRAFTON, capitalist, bent now on a big South American project; his aristocratic wife, BARBARA; his debutante daughter, GAIL (by a previous marriage); her chum, CORA SUE PENDLETON; Mrs. Grafton's brother, TERRY JAMES, and C. TOWNLEY WARD, young financier interested in Grafton's latest business deal.

CHAPTER 11

Once the verbal explosion following Barnard Grafton's announcement had subsided and Cora Sue had run sobbing to her room, Major Allenby prepared to escape. The moment had come, he felt, to indulge in some constructive thinking.

Gail, he noted, seemed the most shaken of all those present and sat like a figure of stone as if seeking to rule nerves all but out of hand. A single movement, her attitude seemed to suggest, might loosen her grip

"Well, if there's nothing we can do about it, it's only sensible that we go about our usual pursuits and try not to be too upset." Barbara Grafton arose in her cool, detached fashion. "I imagine I had better pack Miss Fortier's things," she suggested to her husband.

"All right, Barbara. I'll help you. Be up in about 20 minutes."

It was not the Graftons, however, who first reached the dead girl's room. Allenby was able to forestall them by a good ten minutes during which he made a much more extensive search, spurred on by four parallel dust streaks found on Patricia's bathroom towel.

Hearing footsteps in the hall, Allenby abandoned his quest, confident at least that he had missed nothing an ordinary search would reveal. But from whence had come that dust on the dead girl's towel?

Upon entering his room, he fished from his pocket those letters found on Patricia's desk, also the new deck of cards.

Cards? Patricia had spoken of them—his one promising clue to date, perhaps. As one often postpones a favorite dish to the end of a meal, so Allenby first considered a note in acknowledgment of someone's condolences over Judy's death.

A DARK MYSTERY

Using a handkerchief he smoothed it out on the desk before him, then placed beside it a sheet of stationery with the pirate's flag motif of Freebooter's Hall. This hurriedly written missive was a sample of Judy's chisography, he judged, and must be a page from some newsy letter describing a party.

Affixing bright labels to the names mentioned, Roger Allenby scratched his gray head and took up a deck of brand new cards. He riffled through the entire deck in search of any outsize cards, but failed to find one so studied all the faces and backs through a powerful reading glass.

Apparently there was nothing out of the way. But—Patricia must have had some reason for mentioning them.

One great, vital question loomed on the horizon. Had Patricia, during the preceding night actually gotten hold of her sister's suicide note?

There was no certainty of it. But how else to describe her triumphant air during her brief appearance at the French door?

He thought hard, trying to find any real basis for a tie-up of Judy's disappearance with her sister's sudden, violent death. Accident? He smiled.

Schooling himself to patience, Allenby then faced the whole deck and resumed his scrutiny, holding each card slantwise to the light.

Wrong again. There was no evidence of marking of any sort, though under his glass the highly glazed surfaces would have betrayed even a slight scratch.

Sighing, he settled back, filled his pipe and deliberately plumbed the depths of his experience. Cards were generally associated with gambling and fortune telling.

Fortune telling? Um. Fortune telling was accomplished by the position or sequence of certain cards. Abruptly he began to curse his precipitation in disarranging the original position of the cards. How could he have been so darned careless?

He picked up a card at random, absently tested its edge.

All at once he paused; his thumbnail had been checked in its easy progress along the ace of club's edge. Aware of a small expectant thrill, he examined the ace more closely, and to his surprise noted the existence along the long edge of the card of not one, but of six tiny and distinct nicks.

At first he was inclined to dismiss them as the result of a faulty edge on the cutting machine which had trimmed the cards.

"No, that can't be it," he said, when he picked up the queen of hearts. On this card also there were nicks, but only three! His interest achieving a new high, Allenby ran through the entire deck to discover that, although some cards bore as many as 18 or 20 nicks, others were nicked only once or twice.

Some were not cut at all. What the devil was this? Earnestly, he yearned for certain files at home.

Stripping off his coat, he spread the cards before him and tried to match roughly similar edges together, but so microscopic and varied were the notches he gave up in despair.

As an alternative he then tried arranging the pasteboards in a column lest, perchance, the nicks might represent dots and dashes in a code message. The theory proved valueless.

He was still puzzling when Parker rapped at the door, saying that a launch was ready to take him over to St. George's if he wished to go.

Carefully placing the enigmatic deck in an envelope, he slipped it into his pocket along with the two notes, then pulled on a gray flannel jacket and went below.

"So glad you're coming along," Gail cried, as Creepy gave him a surly nod. "I'm going in town to see about some flowers for the—the funeral. Barbara, Dad and Terry are going to the funeral this afternoon—letting me off."

"You're lucky, Miss Grafton. Much as I like people, I detest going to funerals. When is Sir George coming?"

"Oh, he and Kay Manship will be met in Hamilton by Dad and Terry—around four, I think."

"Hello there, youngster!"

"I want to go, too." Running down the dock with Trumps in frantic attendance came Peter, his eyes dancing. "Mayn't I go, Uncle Roger?"

Gail glanced up in surprise. "Uncle Roger?"

"Yes. We're old pals and we've—" —"Been up to no good, I'll bet," laughed the girl. "Well, I won't give you the third degree."

"Please, Aunty Gail, may I go, too?"

"I guess Barbara will be glad to have him out of the way just now," murmured Gail, casting Allenby a quizzical glance. "Do you mind?"

"Heavens, no. Come along, Pete."

"Nurse! Will you please tell Mrs. Grafton we're taking Peter along?" Gail called to the stiffly starched apparition who hurried up.

THE WITCH DANCE

Silently, the boatman put his craft in gear and the Dart commenced to slide away from the pier.

"Well, Creepy, we don't seem to be having much luck around the island, do we?" Gail began.

"No, Miss, leastvays not on de surface," the dark man replied solemnly. "But de Lord knows best."

"Did you go over dancing last night?" Gail pursued, thereby evoking a wide, white-toothed grin from Creepy.

"Sure did, Miss. Fine night. Boys seem to cut loose better vhen dere's a moon up."

"Is the Dress dance still set for the full of the moon?"

"It's tomorrow night, Miss Gail—if de veather is fine. Are you coming over?" An emphasis on the personal pronoun was so unmistakable Gail smiled a little.

"You know I'd like to, Creepy, but I can't go off leaving my guests behind — even for you. Either we all come or stay home."

"This sounds very interesting, Miss Grafton." Allenby glanced up from a grave conversation with Peter. "What kind of dancing is it?"

The girl's rather drawn-looking features lit. "Oh, it's wonderful. It's the most curious thing you've ever seen, Major."

"Gombeys bad, very silly," Peter commented unexpectedly. "My Mummy says so. Just like witches, dancing around and around and yelling. If I do that I get punished."

Allenby started to chuckle, but the expression on Creepy's face choked it off short and hurriedly he switched the conversation to less dangerous channels.

Clip the Camera Clues

"Will you make a big one for Mummy?" he demanded eagerly.

"Don't leave me out," Gail pleaded. "And I'll give you some stamps. By the way, Major, you were awfully sweet to give Peter all those stamps."

"I can't find the elephant stamp," Peter mourned. "Can you get me 'nother in Hamilton?"

Economy Parley On Hub Schools

A special meeting of the school committee was called for 4 o'clock this afternoon to discuss ways and means of slashing the 1936 budget in line with Mayor Tobin's economy drive.

Members of the school committee have previously stated that they are opposed to any salary cuts.

It was understood that today's meeting, called by Chairman Henry J. Smith, will be the first in a series of daily budget conferences until April 1.

The 1937 budget was $17,239,170.90. Of that amount $1,008,000 was spent for upkeep and repairs and the committee proposes to slash this figure to $800,000, as revealed exclusively in yesterday's Boston Evening American.

School committee members declared that it was impossible to state at this time just how much of a saving would be made.

Jennings Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for Patrolman John V. Jennings, 36, of the Brighton police station will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in St. Paul's Church, Dorchester.

He died at his Humphrey street, Dorchester, home yesterday.

In the police department eight years, Jennings had served as clerk at headquarters, Back Bay, traffic and Brighton stations. He was the son of retired fire Lieutenant Patrick H. and Mrs. Jennings.

He is survived by his parents, four brothers, Henry E., Stephen E., Frank A. and William J. Jennings, and two sisters, Catherine P. and Mary M. Jennings.

REV. CORNELIUS O'BRIEN

Rites were planned today for Rev. Cornelius T. O'Brien, 52, curate of the Sacred Heart Church, Middleboro, who died yesterday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Fred B. Evans, Jr., on Beal street, Malden. He had been ill for four weeks.

MARY P. AMES

JEFFERSON, Me., March 11 — Rites were planned today for Miss Mary P. Ames, 74, private secretary to James G. Blaine, Republican chieftain, 50 years ago, who died of injuries received in a fire in her home.

Miss Ames was secretary to Blaine when he was editor of the old Portland Advertiser, and continued in this capacity during his political career.

ELWYN NICKERSON

ORLEANS, March 11 — Funeral services were being arranged today for Elwyn C. Nickerson, 72, contractor and boat builder, who died at his South Orleans home yesterday. He is survived by his widow, three sons and a daughter.

Josephine Stover Emerson Bride of James R. Meek

By BETTY ALDEN

IN A SHOWER of rose petals, confetti and rice, James Robert Meek and his bride made a dash for the car which was to take them on the first leg of a honeymoon trip to Bermuda, following their wedding reception yesterday afternoon at the Ritz-Carlton . . .

Mrs. Meek, who is the former Josephine Stover Emerson, changed from her bridal laces and taffeta into a travelling suit of navy blue wool trimmed with tuxedo revers of red and white polka dotted challis, and a navy Breton sailor, for her going away costume.

MRS FRANCIS G. SHAW JR.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs Ada Maxwell Emerson of Pinckney street and Colonel Howard Emerson of Cambridge . . . Her father gave her in marriage at the late afternoon ceremony in Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel which was performed by Rev Phillips Endicott Osgood . . . She wore her grandmother's wedding gown of heavy white taffeta with a long train . . . the bodice and draped skirt were caught up by clusters of Belgian lace and lilies of the valley and her tulle veil fell from a Juliet cap of old family lace . . . She carried a formal sheaf of calla lilies . . .

Mrs William Phelps Ellis (Nancy M[illegible] of C[illegible]) and Mrs Andrew Meserve Rankin (Dorothy Cate) of Norwood were the matrons of honor and Margaret Elaine Meek, a student at Wellesley College and sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor . . . Her gown was of [illegible] with a peach straw bonnet tied with matching streamers and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of violets and lilies of the valley . . .

The other attendants wore similar gowns of violet blue with matching [illegible] and long blue streamers . . . and their bouquets were also of violets and lilies of the valley . . .

Following the ceremony there was a small reception at the Ritz-Carlton . . . Mrs Emerson received in a gown of navy blue [illegible] with a navy blue straw hat and a corsage of green orchids . . . Mrs Leslie M. Meek of Ponca City, Oklahoma, mother of the bridegroom, wore a rose chiffon gown with a matching picture hat . . .

The bridegroom's brother, Stanton K. Meek of Lawrence, Kansas, acted as best man and the ushers included two brothers of the bride, Richard Emerson of Lewiston, Pa., and Maxwell Emerson of New York City . . . Also Philip Bramwell of Kansas City and [illegible] Dunham of Cambridge . . .

Among the out of town guests here for the wedding were Mrs Chester Squire of Humboldt, Kansas; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wells Weeks of West Hartford, Ct.; Jacqueline Haley of Lynchburg, Virginia; Harriet O'Brien of Kansas City and David Maxwell of Pittsburgh, Pa., grandfather of the bride . . .

Bride Is Graduate of Vassar

MRS. MEEK is a graduate of Miss Madeira's School in Washington, D. C., and of Vassar College with the class of 1930 . . . She is a direct descendant of the first Emerson family to settle in this country in early Pilgrim days, and of Michael Emerson of Haverhill, father of Hannah Dustin . . . She is a Mayflower descendant on her paternal grandmother's side and through her mother she is a direct descendant of the Dellenbaugh family of Switzerland, pioneer settlers of Pittsburgh, Pa. . .

Mr. Meek attended the University of Kansas and graduated from the Harvard Business School in 1934 . . . He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity . . . He is the son of Mrs. Leslie Meek and the late Mr. Meek of Ponca City, where he and his bride will be at home after May 1 . . .

Mrs. Ellis gave a buffet luncheon yesterday afternoon, just before the wedding, in honor of the bridal couple and their attendants and the previous afternoon her mother, Mrs. Horace Morison, entertained the bride and her attendants at tea at her Louisburg square home . . . A dinner party given at the Junior League by the bride's mother, and a luncheon at which Mrs. Andrew Rankin was hostess were other pre-wedding entertainments in honor of the bride . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Grinnell of New Bedford and their daughter, Mrs. William Almy, of Quansett Farm, South Westport, are among the prominent socialites setting sail tomorrow on a cruise to the tropics aboard the Lady Drake . . .

Fellow passengers on the same ship, which sails from Boston, will be Dr. and Mrs. Reginald Smithwick of Chestnut Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Guild of Charles River, and Charles Woodbury, noted Boston artist who is making a round trip to Demarera in the West Indies . . .

Radcliffe Grads Stage Benefit Tonight

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT chosen by loyal Radcliffe alumnae of Greater Boston to stage their big benefit to raise funds for a regional scholarship fund . . . The entertainment will be a program of unusual dances by Ted Shawn and his male ensemble at John Hancock Hall . . .

General chairman of the benefit is Miss Mary Bowler of Berkeley street and Mrs. Louis Lawrence Green of Cambridge is chairman of patronesses . . .

Among society's dance lovers who are planning to attend are Mrs. Augustus Eustis of Milton, Miss Marian Homans of Marlborough street, Mrs. George B. Dike of Chestnut Hill, Miss Alice Tapley of Gloucester street, Mrs. Charles E. Spencer, Jr., of West Newton, Mrs. Lorris Almy Miller of Marlborough street, Miss Laura May Sweet, Mrs. Grace C. Lathrop of the Fenway, Edward C. Meyer of Revere street and C. Tilton Upham of Boston . . .

Serving as patronesses for this auspicious occasion are Mrs. Franklin Tweed Hammond of Cambridge, who, with Judge Hammond, will be dinner guests of their son and daughter-in-law, the Franklin T. Hammonds, Jr., before the recital . . . Mrs. Algernon Coolidge, Mrs. S. Burt Wolbach, Mrs. Fritz B. Talbot, Mrs. Stanwood G. Wellington and her daughter, Mrs. Francis G. Shaw, Jr., Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, Miss Elizabeth Bradford, Mrs. Ralph Boyd, Mrs. Henry Adams Morss, Mrs. Frederick W. Rhinelander, 2d, Mrs. Dana McL. Greeley, Miss Elizabeth Nichols, Mrs. John C. Kiley, Miss Mabel Daniels . . .

Madame Alma Clayburgh of New York is giving a reception Sunday afternoon in her New York apartment to celebrate the unveiling of a new portrait of her daughter, Alma Clayburgh, who is to be married in June to James Hooper Grew of Boston . . . The portrait, painted by Artur Halmi, is a beautiful likeness of the future Mrs. Grew who is a talented and popular member of New York's younger set . . .

Reception Bound

Lecture, Tea Top Philomatheia Program

Senior Group to Hear Talk on Ireland Next Week

"The Universal Spur of Invention," a psychological treatise on pain and suffering, was discussed by Rev. Edward Keating, S. J., of Boston College, at the regular meeting of the Senior Philomatheia this afternoon at the clubhouse.

Mrs. L. B. Hanley was the day's soloist with Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, president of the group heading the reception committee.

Many enthusiastic plans are going forward rapidly for the "green tea" Wednesday at the clubhouse. Mrs. Daniel J. Holland is chairman of the afternoon.

Highlight of the afternoon will be the presentation of an illustrated lecture "Motoring Through Ireland." Martha Hurley will present several solos accompanied by Mrs. George Flood.

Acting as pourers at the affair will be a trio of the club's executive board, Mrs. Frank G. Sullivan, Mrs. B. J. Ahearn and Mrs. Mary O'Leary Finucane.

Quest to Find City's Perfect Model Is On

Who is the most charming and glamorous of Boston's models?

That is what the Boston Evening American and Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters would like to know and are conducting the search for the city's loveliest model.

The contest, inspired by Joan Crawford's latest starring role in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of Katherine Brush's "Mannequin," opening today at both the State and Orpheum, is open to all mannequins of Greater Boston.

WILL WIN TITLE

A golden opportunity awaits the lucky winner. It may open the gates of Hollywood's magic land of make-believe. In any event the young lady chosen wins the title of "Boston's Perfect Mannequin," receives a smart spring ensemble of the latest Paris fashion, valued at $75 and furnished by the I. J. Fox company of 411 Washington street.

An additional prize of $50 will be given her for her Easter purse. She will be the guest of honor at a dinner party with six other mannequins selected by the judges for honorable mention at the Hotel Lenox with Walter E. Seaver, managing director of the hotel acting as host.

ENTRY QUALIFICATIONS

The qualifications for entrance are very simple. Entrants must be between the ages of 18 and 27, 5 feet to 5 feet 9 inches tall and must not weigh more than 135 pounds. Merely send your photograph. It doesn't matter whether it's a full length, head or otherwise, with your name, address and information clearly written on the back, to the "Perfect Mannequin" Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

Contestants chosen will be asked to appear before the three judges: Ann Marsters, feature writer of the Boston Evening American; Edward C. Tarer, publicity director, I. J. Fox Company, and C. G. Gates of the Gates Photographic Studios, whose decision will be final.

No photographs will be returned. Contest closes Monday and all photographs must be received before Tuesday noon, March 15th.

Aristos Charm School Advice

Wrap Brains in Glamour — Girls Told

But Be Feminine Always, Says Lecturer

"Wrap your brains in glamour" was the unique advice dealt to Aristos girls at the second session of their charm school last evening at the Hotel Bellevue.

Dolores and Dolly Newman were the evening's attractive "guinea pigs" while the audience itself alternately became flowers on stalks and cabbages to demonstrate the fine points of relaxation, poise and carriage.

As to the brain-wrapping idea, the girls were urged be feminine at all times. Proves more effective than an annoying display of efficiency, was the instructor's belief.

PLAN FROLIC

Charm courses don't seem necessary in the lives of Billie Miller and Peg Hurley, whose engagements have just been announced. Billie's bethrothal to Arthur Hopkins of Brighton was made known by her mother, Mrs. Joseph Miller of Brighton, at a recent buffet supper.

Peg, who takes an active part in Somerville affairs of the club, will become the bride of Joe Carroll of Jamaica Plain at a June ceremony. The bride-elect is also prominent in affairs of the Rosary Academy alumnae.

Going through the evening's calisthenics with a great deal of nerve was Winifred Walsh, who's directing arrangements for the St. Patrick's night frolic at the Hotel Sheraton. A series of novelties, dance specialties are being planned for the evening by an ambitious committee.

M[illegible] dropped in from her rounds of League duties to lend her support, her burgundy ensemble combined with Persian lamb. While Agnes Mulcahy, one of the club's foremost members, brought no less than five guests to the gathering.

Demonstrate Poise and Relaxation

Busy with the all-important task of money-changing was Mary Doyle, white chiffon trimming her black crepe, and Claire Roach, who was mighty smooth in a hand-knitted suit of violet boucle. Mildred Collins, club president, introduced the lecturer. A nosegay of spring flowers attached to her white gloves was a tricky spring touch with her black ensemble.

ATTRACTIVELY GOWNED

Glimpsed: Phyllis Pfroetzschner, veil fluttering from her black ensemble; Kathleen Donahue in clever combination of rose and black crepe and Arlene McSweeney and Father Murphy.

Also greatly interested in the evening's instruction were Miriam Regan, Margaret Rooney and Mary Fitzgerald, Mary Scanlon, kidskin trimming her gray suit, was accompanied by Bertha Conlon, whose black costume was edged with caracul.

CHAPTER 39

The ranchers' victory came on Tuesday. On Wednesday, mining stocks crashed in San Francisco. "They're done!" yelled the valley men. "That'll teach 'em!" and Jared shrugged and went to collecting installments. There was gold left in the hills, and there was plenty of good men left to get it. He wondered—

It came Thursday night—a wild-eyed man on a lathering horse howling that the big dam up above Bannockburn had broken.

In Bannockburn village men and women and their children popped out of their little houses. Lanterns bobbed; half-dressed men ran out shouting vague directions. Women screamed. By dint of [illegible] Jared got what men he could [illegible] headed for the place where [illegible] from the break would come.

IT WAS COMING.

[illegible] the crowd [illegible] darkness [illegible] and desperate haste. One [illegible] at the [illegible] that the [illegible] was coming.

[illegible] "[illegible] pans out. My mules [illegible]"

[illegible] smoothly genial. But we'd had [illegible]

GRAVE DANGER

[illegible]

THE IMPOSSIBLE

[illegible]

[illegible] Colonel [illegible] them back. The [illegible] Where [illegible] Like I been [illegible]

He checked. Out on the abandoned [illegible] just on the edge of the wavering lantern-light that gleamed on the black water between appeared a dim moving mass. It was a [illegible]

ROARING DEATH

[illegible] back here. You [illegible] hear me.

The man danced [illegible] about the [illegible] H— said the Colonel and on the word he was waist deep, fighting through the rising water. Jared and a dozen other plunged after him. And then the crest came.

It wasn't a wall of water, it was a dark edge [illegible] foam streaked in the lantern-light [illegible] in the middle. It [illegible] them off [illegible] the Colonel, like a [illegible] hurled them back [illegible]

As Jared was hauled out, gasping, he had one glimpse of three [illegible] on the [illegible]. The Colonel had made it.

Then the [illegible]

Somehow in that moment Jared had a map in his mind [illegible] probable currents. Come on, he shouted and raced down the bank.

He didn't know how he knew it, but he knew that if there was a chance it was at the point of the bend, 100 yards below. He crouched at the tip of the bend, hanging to a dubious willow twig. Something dark swept down.

His fingers gripped a bit of cloth. It was the Colonel alive and swearing chokingly. Jared hung on. "Get your feet down," he yelled. "Swing toward the bank!" His grip was slipping.

"Can't—got Enoch Howitt —"

"And I suppose he's got the mule! LET HIM GO!" He staggered and braced himself as the willow twig gave. "Let go, can't hold both."

"Can't. He can't swim —"

DEATH COMES

[illegible] The twig was breaking. Then hands gripped him. "Grab the [illegible]," he gasped. [illegible]

He saw [illegible] hard shape [illegible] the lantern [illegible] It was one of the timbers from the bridge above.

It had broken the Colonel's neck. [illegible] when the crowd [illegible] and laid him on the bank.

[illegible] Old Man [illegible]

LOVERS REUNITED

from underneath. They wanted their share, and the good ones would get it.

And then before he'd half got ready for her, she came walking in her black dress between the orchard rows. He was already [illegible]

He [illegible] He was the best man I ever saw. He [illegible] you remember in school? King Canute telling the sea to go back? He was like that, trying to stop something that couldn't be stopped. He never quit.

I guess nobody can stop the way [illegible] change, but a man that's good [illegible] fight for what he wants. If he won't fight he deserves what he gets. Guess we [illegible] always be fighting for something, we Americans. It wasn't anything he wanted to [illegible]

He was never any good at phrases when he needed them. He gave up on her father. After all, the colonel didn't need any epitaph from him. He tried to say something [illegible] in San Francisco.

COURAGE TRIUMPHS

And suddenly she [illegible] "Hush. It doesn't matter. Who cares what I said or what you said? It's what we're doing."

And then, without his knowing just how, she was in his arms. And he, who had always taken women casually, as he found them, was rocked to his heels. He wanted to tell her he [illegible] He didn't know how [illegible] hung on to her.

He lifted [illegible]

He drew a slow, hard breath. [illegible] America [illegible] for the taking. His mouth tightened with a grim joy. If a man couldn't make something out of that—

Choosing the Suit to Establish

In many hands a declarer has a choice between two suits that can be established [illegible]

One of them [illegible] may be the more quickly established, the other [illegible] offer more [illegible]

Let me make this clear by means of a hand.

East started [illegible] from the very [illegible] North [illegible] that [illegible] make a game. As it happened, however, he overrated his defensive strength against the three notrump that was finally reached.

West understood the penalty double to mean that East had the [illegible] well stopped [illegible] in four clubs, two hearts and two spades.

DECLARER WINS

[illegible] He saw that East's double was sound. West [illegible] damage.

Therefore instead of finessing the opening lead, the club king was played and the diamond jack was then led. East took the king and shifted to a low heart. Declarer won and continued the establishment of diamonds.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

(With my compliments to John Ford and Samuel Goldwyn)

THAT unforgettable picture—"THE HURRICANE"! That picture which, by some psychic miracles, goes deeper than churning sea, battling wind and crumbling earth, into the secret storm of your own life's terror and loneliness.

Remember how it came upon you, the horror of it all? Slowly, slowly . . . softly, softly . . . as life itself comes. With the surf murmering on the sand . . . and the swift air drowsing through the flowers . . . and the laughter of carefree youth, dancing, dreaming, making love with no thought of the morrow.

Sheen, shine and shimmer . . . and the singing laughter of youth . . sleek fleshed youth slipping lithe as light through lazy, lovely hours . . .

Then slowly, softly, secretly as a snake . . . THE RISING DOOM! The lift and fall of a leaf. The whine and tug of a branch. The snarl of surf that was, just a moment ago, a whispering arc of foam . . .

Softly, softly . . . then harder, faster . . . until, between caught breaths, suddenly the sky went insane!

Earth, air and sea, all insane! Trees straining, bending, lashing . . . then streaming out, file upon frantic file, like wind-blown flame . . .

Trees streaming out level with the earth . . until presently, sickeningly, a root rises, fumbling . . one root, two roots, fumbling like struggling hands . . and with a reaching heave, the tree is gone . . .

Gone streaking like a rocket through the screeching, gagging vomit of mingled earth and air . . .

And over it all!

Over heaving earth and spewing sea and insane air . . .

Over the screeching, yowling, roaring, booming, moaning, howling of murdered earth and tortured flesh . . .

THE SOUND OF THAT BELL!

The long, steady call of the bell on Father Paul's church—that little church which stood on the highest rise of land and was last haven and hope and gentling peace for those who sought its shelter.

THE . SOUND . OF . THE . BELL . . .

THE STEADYING VOICE OF THE BELL—

Over the howl and the yell . . .

THE UNBROKEN STRENGTH OF THE BELL!

A [illegible] Horror beyond belief. Death hurtling the waves. Moment after moment, until your own consciousness crumbled before [illegible] yourself were battered and beaten beneath it.

Yet deep in [illegible] horror [illegible] over its [illegible] THE HEARTENING SOUND OF THE BELL.

And so through the [illegible] of the storm they fought their way [illegible] and clutched God's final blessing into their frightened hearts [illegible] before they passed, those poor doomed children of the Southern Sea.

Once, twice, three times I sat through it . . . seeing it only in bits through the tears in my eyes and the terror in my heart. And when I came out, it was late and dark . . . and the same old hurt and loneliness were waiting for me, as they always do.

But for once, there was something else . THERE WAS THE SOUND OF THE BELL.

AND I THOUGHT HOW THE FAITH THAT BELL SYMBOLIZES HAS STOOD THROUGH ALL THE STORMS . . . THROUGH ALL THE HORRORS AND HELLS . . . THROUGH EVEN THE HURRICANE OF ITS OWN BLUNDERING AND BEWILDERMENT. YET NEVER ONCE HAS IT CEASED TO SEND ITS CALL THROUGH THE STORM.

And never once—however dark the way or muddled the method—has it ceased to give haven, hope and comfort for those who sought its shelter!

So easy to criticise! But if you've ever been lost in a storm . . . if you've ever felt the horror of heartbreak and terror and shame in your life . . . YOU'LL REMEMBER THAT BELL. AND BE GLAD!

Shall She Wed Her Mother's Ex-Beau?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The problems of love and marriage are amazing and numberless. You sometimes think you have seen all that possibly can be seen. And then you wake up to the fact that the surprises haven't even begun.

That was my feeling early this morning when I opened the following letter from a girl who lives right here in Boston:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I seem to be one of those ugly duckling girls who has been completely overshadowed by a brilliant and beautiful mother.

"Mother is one of those silver-haired sirens who has retained her schoolgirl complexion and violet eyes. She says it's because she never worries. And why should she when everyone has done her bidding from [illegible] childhood?

"I can't help being downright ugly, but I think I would not always appear as an out-and-out moron if it hadn't been for mother's dazzling efficiency.

"Mother has always had dozens and lots of boy friends. They range from the just-out [illegible] fledglings to retired generals and admirals, and all of them WITH ONE EXCEPTION, [illegible] more or less in love with her.

"The one exception has asked me to marry him, and while I'm not [illegible] I think I shall [illegible] with him to escape my home with its beautiful, brilliant mother.

STILL LOVES HER

"I shall always be homely in spite of [illegible] parlors. But I won't [illegible] mother is a [illegible]

"Please don't think I hate mother. I'm really very fond of her, but she [illegible] and reduces me to the level of a nitwit. I got my inferiority complex when I was a [illegible] everyone would say:

"Your daughter must look like her father's family; she doesn't resemble you in the least."

"The man who has asked me to marry him is [illegible] years older than I am. I think he fell in love with me from pity.

"Mother is willing to give us her blessing, and I think will be glad to see me have a home of my own, as the saying goes.

"But do you think a girl of 24 who has been completely overshadowed by a brilliant mother should marry a man whom she doesn't love as a means of escape from an uncongenial home?

"UGLY DUCKLING."

DEAR CHILD:

Perhaps you will think I'm hopelessly Victorian, but to me it seems the height of folly for a girl of 24 to rush into matrimony without love, to escape an uncongenial home.

Why don't you try to have a little life of your own away from this brilliant, beautiful mother who has [illegible] courage and [illegible] is unable to stand on [illegible] own feet?

Certainly you could get a job or go into settlement work for your room and board. Or you could offer your services in an institution, or take training as a nurse.

ACCEPT ANY SORT OF A DECENT JOB WHICH WILL HELP YOU TO BUILD UP YOUR OWN PERSONALITY AND TO BE SOMETHING BESIDES MOTHER'S UGLY-DUCKLING CHILD.

There are women like your mother—I've known a number of them—who have no idea that they are really domestic vampires, but who are so determined to exercise their own dominant personality that they never permit anyone in their family circle to use their own initiative or judgment.

Yours is one of those terrible cases in which "Mother knows best," and you have shivered along in her wake without realizing that you are a person as well as she.

Please don't marry mother's cast-off beau.

Try to get one of the jobs which is here suggested, that would help to develop you as an individual.

Then, after a year or two, if this man seems the right sort of a partner, by all means, marry him.

Martha Lee's Chat

Old Food Theories Are Exploded

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER WMEX

[illegible] Then be sure you are up-to-date on food facts.

Here are some old theories which have since been blown "higher than a kite." Remember "never leave food in a can after opening?" That was in the old days; now experts advise leaving it there, properly refrigerated, until used.

We used to think vitamins were lost in the canning process, too, but many—such as the precious vitamin C in canned grapefruit and canned cranberry sauce is retained.

Remember the one about "don't use aluminum pans?" That's outmoded, too. Tomatoes may affect the color of the pan, but not you.

"Fried foods are hard to digest," Grandma believed. But that was because they were improperly cooked; a modern cooking fat isn't even absorbed by deep-fried foods if they are cooked at the proper temperature.

"Don't drink liquids with your meals" used to be a favorite warning. And now your doctor will insist you get plenty of milk and orange juice and water, with meals or any time.

Belief in this sort of logic may throw a family's diet way off. At best, it may waste money; at worst, it can cause people to go without necessary elements in the diet, the lack of which may keep a person below "par" or result in actual sickness.

So don't be a food faddist. Check up on your beliefs and be sure that you aren't a follower of some food fad or fallacy.

FISH FRUIT COCKTAIL

1½ cups crabmeat
2 grapefruit
6 tablespoons tomato ketchup
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash tabasco
½ teaspoon Worcestershire

Cut grapefruit in halves, selecting firm grapefruit; remove core and membranes. Cut sections in small pieces and mix with flaked crabmeat. Add seasonings; chill. Serve in grapefruit shells; garnish with parsley and ketchup. Six servings.

DIGESTIBLE CHEESE FRITTERS

2 cups cornmeal mush
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup grated cheese
1 egg

Add flour, sifted with baking powder and salt to mush. Add cheese and lastly, egg slightly beaten. Drop by spoonfuls on hot griddle until golden brown or fry until brown in deep fat at 375 F. (hot enough to brown a cube of bread in one minute). Drain and serve hot.

CRANBERRY TAPIOCA

⅓ cup quick cooking tapioca
1 1-3 cups boiling salted water
1 cup cranberry sauce
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
3 tablespoons orange juice
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Cook tapioca in the boiling salted water for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from fire, cool, and add the cranberry sauce, orange rind and orange juice. Fold in the whipped cream. Pour into [illegible]

TOO NEW SANDWICHES

Banana-Raisin: Mix ½ cup raisins with 1 crushed banana. Salt to taste. Spread between buttered slices of bread. Mayonnaise may be added to mixture if desired. Makes 4 to 6 sandwiches.

Jam Dandy: Spread slice of bread with cream cheese and cover with slices of banana. [illegible]

Wherever your fate leads you—whether it's in strange lands or in the familiar highways and byways that you tread day after day in the ordered marvel of just living—you'll never be without a brand new deordorant that looks like sun-shot chartreuse liqueur and smells innocently of hyacinths and jonquils. Not if you're wise, you won't.

It's remarkable in that it is the standby of a Chicago skin specialist who required in his work an utterly bland, non-irritating deodorant with definite and lasting results. He worked the formula out for his own use originally, and now its fame is spreading over the land.

It cannot possibly stain clothing or shoes or stockings—which is an unusual attribute. We know of some fastidious girls who go over their wardrobe for any sign of the hectic pace that may have been left in perspiration stain, and remove the taint of it completely with this liquid.

The flow of perspiration itself isn't retarded at all.

Follow a Safe And Sane Diet

By IDA JEAN KAIN

"What would you do, if every time you went on a diet you felt weak, lost your disposition, and caught a cold? That is exactly what happens to me, and yet I am much too fat and want to reduce!"

Since this letter is typical of many I receive from overweights, I want to tell you in detail what to do under those circumstances.

Reverse the process of dieting to reduce and eat to take off weight. Any reducing diet that makes you feel weak either lacks some food you should be getting or is too low in calories.

The foods that give strength to a reducing diet are one liberal serving of lean meat or two small servings a day, one egg and one or two glasses of skim milk or buttermilk. These foods not only stick to the ribs and give substance to a reducing diet, but they supply protein, calcium and iron, which are essential in any diet.

The reducing diet should be abundant in vitamins. One-half glass of orange juice or grapefruit juice or one glass of tomato juice and a second fruit of some kind should be used daily. Because of their Vitamin C content these fruits tend to increase your feeling of well being.

Avoid dates, prunes, figs and raisins which have a high calorie count. Apples, pears, tangerines, fresh strawberries, pineapple and bananas are all made to order for the reducer. They are delicious, low in calories and helpful in the prevention of constipation caused by a decrease in the quantity of the food intake.

Your real sacrifice on a reducing program is the desserts. Of course you love them, but the delectable desserts are so high in calories that if they are included part of the protective foods must be left out—the reason you feel weak and edgy on a reducing diet.

Be sure to have two cooked vegetables every day. Spinach, carrots and tomatoes are particularly good for the reducer because they supply Vitamin A, but choose the vegetables you like best and have one-half cup servings of two vegetables. A raw vegetable salad is excellent since it is filling without being in the least fattening. If you dislike mineral oil dressing don't use it but count your [illegible] French dressing at [illegible] calories per tablespoon. The bigger the salad the better.

Please don't overlook the importance of milk in your diet. You will feel better for having two glasses of skim milk or buttermilk every day.

Use three or four slices of whole grain bread each day. Have the slices thin so that the butter will seem like more. The butter should be limited to one and one-half pats per day for, as you know, fats are two and one-fourth times as fattening as the other food elements.

If you catch cold on a reducing diet take one Vitamin A capsule daily. Vitamin A capsules [illegible] and cod liver oil capsules and in this concentrated form add a negligible number of calories. Better health does not mean excess weight, and one of these capsules daily will increase your sense of well being and build up your resistance to colds.

Use only a little salt and not more than one glass of liquid with your meals, but between meals drink eight glasses of water.

To lose weight in the right places you must exercise. Fifteen minutes of exercise daily concentrated on your worst measurements will do the most surprising things for your figure. In order to keep that fresh complexion and a feeling of exuberance you need to walk at least one mile a day in the fresh air.

On such a program I will guarantee that you will lose one to two pounds per week, feel fit as a fiddle and lose in the right spots. You will look better and feel younger.

The leaflets "Pointers to Slimness" and "Reducer's Ten Commandments" will prove very helpful in your reducing program. Write to Ida Jean Kain, enclosing a large, adequately stamped envelope for these two leaflets.

I WAS miserably conscious that my face was scarlet at Katie's assurance, "Dot Meester Drake he no like anybody else so mooch as you."

I took refuge in quick directions for the immediate task before me, the staging of what Lillian called the "balcony scene" for the benefit of the watchers from the shack on the hill.

"Will you ask Jim to come upstairs in five minutes?" I said, and before Katie could complete her ready "Sure ting. I tell heem," I had plunged into further hurried speech.

Katie Understands

"Tell him to bring that big rocker from the front porch," I directed, "and also have him get that wool rug from my study. And will you send up with him four soft couch pillows, and the two lightweight motor blankets? You'll find the blankets in the library window seat."

"You tink I not know dot?" Katie asked. "Me, I have eferyting ready for you time you get back oopstairs, eef you goin' tell Meester Drake somethings now. He talk ear off brass monkey, dot feller, ven he get started."

I did not need to search for him. I knew of old his fondness for the view from our front veranda, and there I found him.

Time for "Act"

"Don't get up," I said hurriedly.

"I fancy it is time for me to dash into my act," he said, smiling lazily. "Otherwise I am afraid you never would come in search of me. But, remember, when we are once upon that balcony, you must play an affectionate filial role no matter how distasteful it is to you."

"There is no need to caution me," I told him, trying to make my voice light and casual. "I know what is at stake, and you may be sure I shall do nothing to jeopardize my father's safety. When I come out upon that balcony I shall observe in every slightest detail my usual behavior when I am with my father."

"Then I shall have a most delightful experience," he said, "and I assure you, I, too, shall observe faithfully every slightest detail of your father's usual behavior toward you. I shall not deviate from it at all."

His words were a careful, apparently innocuous echo of mine.

"I am sure you will find me letter perfect in the role," he went on, falling into step beside me as I turned back into the house. "Remember, I have had many opportunities of seeing you and your father together, and I am confident I can remember—and reproduce—all his mannerisms and actions. You can count on me."

"I know that," I said promptly, "and I know that my father trusts you absolutely. I am sure everything you do would be approved by him, and that your impersonation will be a great success."

"Touche," Mr. Drake said cryptically as he grinned down at me.

Public Bonfire Of Condemned Cars Tonight

Description of Blaze To Be Broadcast by Traffic Leaders

Flames of condemned automobiles will light the sky tonight in a spectacular bonfire to be held on the Medford marshes off Mystic street, Medford, in connection with National Used Car Exchange Week.

Many civic organizations and public officials have praised the campaign for the removal of these cars from the highways, with [illegible] Motor Vehicle [illegible] in commending their destruction.

A description of the blaze will be broadcast over stations WBZ and WBZA from [illegible] p. m. Among the speakers will be [illegible] John H. [illegible], president of the Massachusetts Safety Council; Alfred W. Devine, assistant registrar of motor vehicles, and [illegible] W. C[illegible] of the Medford fire department.

A [illegible] of [illegible] cars has been piling up for days so that the pile is [illegible] feet in height.

Co-operating with the program are dealers [illegible] makes of cars who have traded them in [illegible] the cause of safe transportation.

The Brighter Side -:-

By Damon Runyon

Registered

(Copyright, 1938, by King Features Syndicate. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

EN ROUTE, March 10—You peer out the Pullman window and you see that spring has come to Georgia. The sun is shining, and the air is warm and sweet and here and there about the landscape is a pinkish glow.

Damon Runyon

The peach trees are in bloom and of course you think of the old song "Everything Is Peaches Down in Georgia." You have forgotten at the moment who wrote that one. So many songs have been written about Georgia peaches that it is hard to keep track of the authors.

You reflect that probably few of the writers who have written Georgia songs ever saw Georgia, but you feel that if they would visit this section at this time of year and view that [illegible] of [illegible] across the land and sniff the perfumed breezes it would [illegible] up their [illegible] no little. You tell yourself that you must take this matter up with the song writing lads as soon as you get back to Lindy's.

You enjoy the panorama that is [illegible] before your eyes as the train sifts along. Much of the country is through a section in which the soil is [illegible] red, and you see men plowing in the fields behind lop-eared mules and wish you were a farmer with a nice little piece of land down here that grew things, only you were pretty sure you would not like the work involved.

MULE SCORES ONE

You are also pretty sure you would not care for those mules. You remember that you were never able to get along with mules since the time you tried to be a sort of an apprentice mule skinner for Mr. Corrigan on a grading job back there in Pueblo, Col., and one of the mules they gave you to drive kicked you on the head.

It was a glancing punch and you recall that it was the popular impression that the mule was trying to kick your brains out, not realizing that if you had had any brains you would not have been trying to be a mule skinner.

Then there was another mule by the name of Betty at the Presidio in San Francisco when you were in the [illegible] business that took a big bite out of your plug of chewing tobacco one day when you happened to be in [illegible] range of her jaws and the tough part was that the plug of tobacco was in your right hip pocket. You remember that the doctor remarked on examination that you ought to have better sense than to sit down in a steel trap.

SCENE CHANGES

It is a swiftly changing scene. Sometimes the train is [illegible] through gently rolling hills timbered with pine. Occasionally you see a burst of white blossoms that the porter says is dogwood, but the porter does not strike you as a reliable source of horticultural tips.

A lot of the houses in the cute little towns and in the fields you are raised off the ground leaving an open space between the floor and the earth, probably for the better circulation of air, and you wonder if this was the origin of air conditioning in this country.

STEEPLES SEEN

You note that even the little towns have their one or more church steeples.

You also note that the young ladies that you glimpse at the stations during the brief stops are exceptionally pretty and you infer that they are doubtless fair samples of the renowned Georgia peaches.

You remember that Georgia is said to be the home of the prettiest young ladies in the world and as all young ladies always look prettier in the spring time than at any other season of the year the beauty of Georgia [illegible] at this moment practically [illegible].

Their complexions partake of the [illegible] coloring of the peach. Their eyes reflect the glory of the Georgia sunshine. You say to yourself that it must be mighty nice to live in Georgia in the spring amid all this loveliness of nature and her children, to which a confirmed Georgian would perhaps reply yes and it is mighty nice to live in Georgia in the summer and in the fall and in the winter [illegible]

SHE RISKS HER LIFE FOR THE Movies

IONE REED, Hollywood's daring movie stunt girl, was "on location." A hazardous stunt was filmed over and over before the "take" was right. Later, during a moment of rest, she asked for a Camel. And that led to the question: "I've noticed that you're a steady Camel smoker, Miss Reed. Do you have definite reasons for preferring them to other cigarettes?"

HERE'S MISS REED'S ANSWER: "I certainly have found Camels different in so many ways! Going through my stunts over and over is a severe test [illegible] nerves. There have been times when it would have been disastrous if my nerves had snapped. So you can see why I think there's no other cigarette like Camels, since they are the cigarette that doesn't jangle my nerves. Camels are so mild. I smoke them all through the day, and my nerves don't feel the least bit frayed. They are gentle to my throat too. After a meal, I enjoy Camels—for digestion's sake.' You see...in so many ways, Camels agree with me."

ONE OF THE PHOTOGRAPHERS snapped this daring change just as Miss Reed leaped from a speeding car to a locomotive. "I know what hard work is," she says. "[illegible] me I've been thankful for that cheery 'lift' I get with a Camel." Often while making pictures Ione has time for only a quick snack. "Smoking Camels," she says, "always helps me to enjoy my meal so much more."

JUMPING OFF TRAINS—changing from speeding car to train—Ione Reed faces danger with a smile. She knows what she's doing. She is extra careful in her choice of a cigarette, because, as she says: "It means a lot to me to know that my cigarette agrees with me!"

Millions of other people find . . . just as Miss Reed does . . . that Camels give them what they want in smoking!

IT'S Camels for Hollywood's star stunt girl—Ione Reed! It's Camels for the famous diving expert—Commander Ellsberg! And for golf champion Ralph Guldahl; speed flier Roscoe Turner; and men and women in all walks of life. They find that Camels are supremely the cigarette that agrees with them.

If you are not now enjoying Camels, perhaps you, too, will find as others have, that it means a lot to smoke Camels—the cigarette that is made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS, Turkish and Domestic.

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

FOR HER HOURS OF RECREATION Miss Reed likes the same things most girls do . . . cooking . . . dancing . . . outdoor sports. And Camels! Referring to Camel's popularity, "Hollywood seems to have a decided preference for Camels," she says. "On almost every movie lot I notice that so many of the stars prefer Camels."

ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER—
"CAMELS AGREE WITH ME"

"Camels—by a large majority," say planters who know the kinds of tobacco bought by each popular cigarette

T. N. Williams, well known grower of Winchester, Kentucky, says: "A planter knows tobacco. My last crop was the best I ever had and the Camel people bought my best leaf tobacco—paid me the highest price I ever got, too. There isn't any question where the more expensive tobaccos go. They're in Camel cigarettes. That's one reason why I prefer Camels. And why most of the planters around here smoke Camels too."

The premium price—that's what J. B. [illegible], another successful planter, got from the Camel buyer last year when his tobacco was auctioned off in the tobacco market. "Camel buyers don't buy just any tobacco—they pay more to get the best tobacco. That means finer tobaccos are used for Camels. I say cigarette quality has got to be grown in the leaf tobacco. That's why I smoke Camels."

"I'm a tobacco planter," says Vertner Hatton, who has grown tobacco for 25 years. "The Camel people bought the best lots of my last crop. Paid a high price for my finest grades. I smoke Camels—because I know there isn't any substitute for more expensive tobaccos. Most planters favor Camels."

"It's a fact that Camel uses costlier tobaccos," adds Floyd Smither, who grows tobacco and knows it from the ground up. "Last year I grew a handsome crop of tobacco and the Camel people bought up all the choice lots. I smoke Camels myself. So do most planters hereabouts. I know the quality tobacco that goes into them."

"I had the dandiest tobacco crop ever last season," says Roy Jones, an experienced tobacco grower. "The Camel people outbid the other buyers and paid the biggest price to get the best lots. I've seen that happen year after year at the auctions. So I know they use costlier tobaccos for Camels, and I smoke 'em."

AUSTEN LAKE

A Day in Florida; Or Eight Hours Of Hallucination

SARASOTA, FLA., MARCH 11—THERE ARE THREE METHODS of travel between St. Petersburg and Sarasota; by 'round-about road over the three-mile Gandy bridge and past the tobacco and citrus groves of Tampa, by a humpbacked ferry and 65 miles of spinal massage from vibrating motors, or by an airplane hack service.

AUSTEN LAKE

Shortly after sun-up our duck-bellied, slender-winged amphibian waddled over the hubbly field of the St. Pete airport and trained its motors in gusty snorts. Gathering headway down the central takeoff-lane we cleared the telephone wires and circled over the sun-drenched city. We banked sharply over the ballpark where the Bees used to train, so that the cabin windows looked down on fenced-in acres spread like an emerald handkerchief and on stands that were miniature matchboxes.

The West Coast Inn, with its galleried flounces and watertower cap, passed underneath. The amber front of the Vinoy Park Hotel, the sponge-fleet tied to the municipal pier, the dirigible barn with its Goodyear blimp half-hiding its nickled nose, the gray anchored-hulk of a Coast Guard cutter, the creamy fringe of the waterfront slid beneath, and we headed north over the pearl-green waters of Tampa Bay.

The plane swooped low, now, skimming the water at 50 feet and, looking down into the shadowed depths, one saw silvery flirts of fish tails and sometimes a dodging smudge which suggested something sinister with hungry teeth.

A white yacht with a needle sharp prow slunk through the waters, leaving a wake of radiating ripples. And ahead, as we climbed, the wooded shore of Manatee County appeared with its edgings of silver beach and estates of the wealthy residents where there were Tropical gardens in the thick of wilderness wood.

The Famed Georgia Chain Gang

FAR TO THE LEFT, in a pine [illegible] the turpentine trees were burning and sending up a [illegible] funnel of smoke from the core of a rosy flame. The [illegible] trees were sweating their inflammable juices, dropping liquid fire on the palmetto undergrowth and spreading fury to their neighbors.

We were high over land now and soaring across miles of green orange and grapefruit [illegible] spaced in mathematical rows and bearing bright fruit like Christmas tree spangles.

The pilot screwed around in his basket seat and stabbed a suggestive finger downward. Ahead and to the right was the Bradenton training park of the Bees with its rambling shacks and sandy patches.

The pilot sloped the nose of the plane and dived alarmingly, zooming while the pinpoint faces of a groundkeeper's crew gaped shielding the sun from their eyes.

The same duncolored cows seemed to be grazing beyond the center field fence where, in the old raggety Red Sox day, Ken Williams, Baby Doll Jacobson and Earl Webb had pumped their long drives. Beyond were the salad greens of painted miles — strawberries and celery. And still further lay the circus winter quarter with its low-rooved stalls and horse corrals, the railheads with lines of bright-painted coaches, the canvas-jacketted parade wagons, the gray storage houses and round houses where the aerialists train.

It was nearing my 9 a. m. date with Roland Butler, the Ringling press greeter, as we gentled down and bumped to a landing, taxiing over the grassy tufts to the gate of the circus grounds.

Nearby lay a Negro prison colony with tin-covered, wooden barracks and black-and-white striped felons with chains riveted to their ankles. Several white men in slouch hats and authoritative jaws stood around, one with a rifle in the hollow of his arm.

The prisoners moved with spraddle-legged awkwardness—short-termers who repaired the roads about the region and cleared the rattlesnake-infested underbrush as precaution against fires.

Introducing 'Gargantua-the-Great'

BUTLER WAS WAITING in the gaudy press-car near the gate, and together we walked through the shadeless, sun-burned lawns to the frame-hut where "Gargantua-the-Great," the bull gorilla, lived in solitary since having nearly wrenched the arm off John North, the young ex-Yale man who is now head of the "Greatest Show on Earth."

The giant primate was being cloistered for two good reasons. (1) lest he catch cold and succumb to galloping pneumonia and (2) lest he reach his five-foot arms through the bars and wring out some bystander like a kitchen mop.

HIS SPECIAL KEEPER, a swart German named Dick Kroner, gave us sanitary nose-masks as a precaution against breathing contagion into the air, and unpadlocked the door to the narrow cell.

The result was startling.

Gargantua, taken unaware, began an insane, 500-pound gallop above its cage, showering us with refuse from the bottom of its platform and extending a sinuous reach through the bars.

"Keep close to the wall," warned Kroner as the gorilla's 12-inch fingers swept in an arc a foot short of our chests.

As a picture of menace and evil, I have never seen the equal of Gargantua and its pumpkin-sized head, awning eyebrows and hate-spatting eyes. It seemed good to escape to the sunlight and open air.

"If we can only keep him alive," said Butler, "he'll be our headline attraction."

Austen Lake writes regularly for the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Ted Williams, young outfielder from the Coast, who comes to the Red Sox with fine batting reputation. Long, lean and reminiscent of old Cy Williams of the Phillies. With San Diego last year, Williams batted .292, driving in 98 runs and hitting 23 homers. He will not be years of age until next October.

English on Third In First B's Fray

By JOE CASHMAN

BRADENTON, Fla., March 11—In announcing the lineups for the first scrub game today, Manager Casey confirms our printed suspicion of a few days back that he intends to depend entirely on Bees' veterans until if ever some newcomers show him something to change his mind.

On the team called the Caseys, otherwise the Regulars, will bat as named, Rabbit Warstler, ss; R. Johnson, lf; Gene Moore, rf; Tony Cuccinello, 2b; Gilly English, 3b; Vince DiMaggio, cf; Elbie Fletcher, 1b; Roy Mueller, c, and Frank Gabler, p.

REIS A SENSATION

Not only that, but the pilot also reveals his intention of starting that same regular supporting cast back of Milt Shoffner and Dick Errickson in the opening exhibition against the St. Louis Cardinals in St. Pete, next Monday.

Only one pitcher is assigned to to each side today because this fray will go but five frames, and Casey thinks all his flingers now are in shape to go that far.

Just one fielder of whom anything is expected isn't down to play on one side or the other in today's test. That's Harl Maggart, heavy-hitting rookie infielder.

His arm looks weak, and he's under orders to rest it as much as possible.

The kid's wing is not very strong at best, according to the scouts, but it must be better than it appeared here. He's had trouble getting the ball from third to first without hopping it.

Stengel gets higher on Reis as an infielder every day, says that right now Bob is the best ground-coverer and classiest handler of ground balls on the squad, and plans to give this versatile young man every opportunity to knock off a place in the inner quarter.

Gabler and Lanning have been selected as today's pitchers because they are regarded as being the farthest advanced of the mound corps.

— INTRODUCING

Rookies With 1938 Phils

EARL ALLEN, slim southerner who pitched a shutout for Portsmouth over Nashville in the Piedmont League playoffs, then reported to the Phillies for a fall tryout in time to figure as relief pitcher in three National League games. Started in Cotton States League in 1934 with Jackson, Miss., and had his biggest year in 1936 when he won 19 Georgia-Florida League games for Tallahassee. In his Alabama home town he is a noted bowler, indicating why his pitching arm is always in top shape 12 months in the year.

"SWEDE" BURKART, Philadelphia local boy farmed out to Albany last season and back for another wangle with Wilson's Wildcats. His start with the Nypa Senators was handicapped by tooth trouble. Finally on May 13 he had the offending molar extracted and that afternoon scored his first victory of the season, trouncing Trenton, 4 to 3. As youngster in Olney section of suburban Philadelphia he had a great collection of ball players' pictures, clipped from newspapers and magazines, little dreaming his own picture would adorn his home town sports pages before he became 21. Swede first attracted Manager Jimmy Wilson's eye by the very practical method of pitching six-hit ball against the Phillies in a 1936 exhibition game.

"CAP" CLARK, probably the only living ball player who hit .300 in three different leagues last year, and three very swift leagues, too, the places being Sacramento, Houston and Columbus, and the averages being .313, .330 and .347. "Cap" means the man has native leadership qualities which augur for success in his chosen callings—baseball catcher in summer and athletic coach in winter. Former Elon College athlete who hit .354 for Asheville in 1935 and had a Cardinal tryout in the spring of 1936. Has had the .300 habit the past six years. Jumped right from the campus to Durham in 1932 and since then has treked the trail from coast to coast and down to the Gulf at Houston. Coached this winter at Isaeford, N. C., high school.

GENE CORBETT, first baseman farmed out to Buffalo and back with the proud record of being the only International Leaguer, outside of pitchers, who figured in more than 50 games last year without hitting into a single double play, making the move a great success if Wilson's idea in farming him was to cure him of double play ball hitting. Last spring, during Camilli's holdout, Corbett was a training camp sensation, and Philly scribes were plugging him as a worthy successor of the Italian siege gun. On the eve of the season, Gene jammed his thumb between his bat and a pitched ball in an exhibition game. Before he was ready again, Phils signed Camilli, so Gene shuffled off to Bisontown and fame as International League 1937 champion of NOT hitting into double plays.

BILL EHRENSBERGER, reformed outfielder who was a 14-game winner for Jackson in the Cotton States League in 1936 and split last year between the Texas and Western. Bill pranced the prairie as an outfielder for Shreveport in '34, but the hitting was not there, and it was back to the semi-pros for William. Some fancy throwing to the plate from centerfield gave him the notion that he could do even better if he aimed at the plate from about 60 feet away. So he turned pitcher and in his first pitching year, 1936, won 9 straight for Jackson. Born on Lincoln's Birthday, Bill works in winter around an oil refinery near his Texas home. His biggest thrill to date was winning his own game, a 1 to 0 shutout, by hitting a home run.

"RABBIT" MOREHOUSE, who scampered the shortstop tract awhile for Sacramento last spring, tried it some more at Houston, but wound up the year at Rochester at the opposite end of the country and the other side of the keystone hassock. With the Phils second base is his aim, although he was shortstopping when he figured in his banner play of the year, a Coast League opening day triple play. Rabbit was a sandlot star around San Diego until he started his professional career at Lincoln, Neb., in 1934. Was at Houston and Bloomington in 1935, then Sacramento, until he started traveling last year. Proud father of two beautiful little girls.

"DUTCH" MUELLER, Houston second baseman who came back from a Mexico winter barnstorming trip with a gold medal awarded for popularity by the baseball-wise natives. A St. Louis boy originally and son of one of the leading druggists, Dutch is a rabbit type infielder who signed with Danville as a 16-year-old high school prodigy and in the ensuing seven years has been about everywhere in the Cardinal system. At Springfield he was a public hero for breaking up a crucial game with a home run with the bases full. In the off season he is associated with his father in business, with a special flair for the window decorating phase of the business.

TOMMY REIS, no-hit hero of the Nypa playoffs and a 19-game winner for Wilkesbarre during the season's schedule. His crash into the Hall of Fame was packed with drama. Elmira beat the Barons the first 2 games, then Tommy went to work. In the third game, two of the first three Elmira batters reached first safely without making hits, then silence. The next 26 were just outs. Earlier in the year, it looked as if Tommy's main claim to fame would be in the other department. He hit two homers in one game, the first time a pitcher has ever done this in the history of Wilkesbarre's Artillery Park. Tommy got through high school down in Kentucky in 1933 and promptly broke into professional baseball with Zanesville. He stayed in that class until New Orleans bought him in 1936. Before the year was over the Pelicans traded him to the Barons to have his big year in 1937 and the Pennsylvania coal country.

Rookie Pitchers Delight Cronin

By BILL GRIMES

SARASOTA, March 11—Although the Red Sox batterymen have been in camp for only 10 days, it is very apparent that Manager Joe Cronin has one of the best looking corps of rookie pitchers in the American League.

One of the reasons for the failure of the Sox last season was the pitching staff. It let Joe Cronin down and the rest of the club [illegible]

There are five or six openings in the Red Sox pitching department. At this writing Robert Moses Grove, [illegible] and possibly Johnny Marcum are the only fixtures. Fritz Ostermueller is also a problem and [illegible] and Archie McKain must show more stuff to remain on the [illegible]

BAGBY BEST OF LOT

Jim Bagby is up from Hazelton, which was in a class A organization. With only two years of pro ball as a background, Bagby won 21 games last season.

He has plenty of stuff, being very fast and possessor of a nice curve. He handles himself like a veteran on the hill top.

He not only knows how to pitch but he also knows how to cover up his stuff. Right now, he is the No. 1 rookie hurler.

Humphrey was here three years ago. He is ready for major league service. He shows to better advantage every time he is sent to the mound.

Midkiff worked out here last season and should have been retained but due to an agreement, he was sent out and spent the season with the Little Rock club of the Southern Association. Dick seems to be much faster than last spring, when his best ball was his curve.

Donie Bush advised Joe Cronin to allow Wagner to go along by

Champion Gives Colored Matman Shot at Title

Undefeated Arabian Meets George Clark In Semifinal

His opponent will be Seelie Samara, spectacular colored challenger from Algeria.

It will be the first time in history of wrestling that a colored man has been given a crack at the [illegible]

Casey, who won the crown from Louis Thesz, [illegible] youth at the Garden on February 11, [illegible] Samara [illegible] the powerful [illegible] has the goods.

He has never been beaten in more than 300 amateur and professional combats and had not lost a fall until Thesz pinned his shoulders a first fall in the biggest match of his career, the one in which he copped wrestling's top [illegible]

Samara, however, has such a brilliant record that [illegible] are convinced he stands a [illegible] chance of dethroning [illegible]

"Wrestling goes as the pendulum swings," one enthusiastic Samara supporter said, during Seelie's workout at Jerry Buckley's gymnasium.

"The way the pendulum swings these days no champion in wrestling lasts for long. Louis Thesz held the title but 44 days until Casey dethroned him. Casey's reign will be even shorter lived."

This match a grudge [illegible] if ever there was one, was [illegible] forced upon Casey. He [illegible] "color line" when Samara first started hurling red-hot [illegible] at him.

Then when it was proved Steve wrestled a colored man in [illegible] and another in Chicago recently and fans were howling for a Casey-Samara struggle because of the latter's rapid-fire and decisive victories over Billy Bartush, Wee Willie Davis, Tor Johnson, Hans Steinke and Richard Stahl, Steve took the match to save his face.

"I didn't want to wrestle another colored fellow," Casey told Jack Albright, his manager. "You know as well as I do that we would not have taken that Chicago match had we known my opponent was a colored fellow. However, since I took this battle with Samara I'll be in there throwing everything I have, determined to punish him as I never punished a wrestler before. I'll be champion after tonight as I am today."

Samara appeared just as [illegible]

"Nobody thought I had a chance against Bartush, Davis, Johnson, Steinke and Stahl, but not one of 'em even gave me a close battle," Samara said.

SO THIS IS THE NEW HOME, HEY? BOY! YOU SURE WENT TO TOWN ON THE FURNISHINGS! WHAT'D YOU DO? ROB A BANK?
I KNEW YOU'D GO SIMPLY CRAZY OVER THAT BEDROOM SET, ROSE. WE DESIGNED IT AND THEN SENT OVER TO ITALY AND HAD IT HAND-CARVED.
GET A LOAD OF THE NEW COMBINATION RADIO-PHONOGRAPH, GEORGE. ONLY $495.00 I GUESS, ALTOGETHER, IT SET US BACK AROUND FOUR OR FIVE THOUSAND TO FIX THE JOINT UP.
HOW DO YOU DO. I'M HERE FROM THE CITY ASSESSOR'S OFFICE TO APPRAISE YOUR BELONGINGS FOR THE PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX.
WELL, YOU WON'T FIND MUCH HERE. MOST OF THIS OLD STUFF, LIKE THAT BEDROOM SET IN THERE—WE PICKED UP IN SECOND HAND STORES.
YEH, WE'D BE LUCKY IF WE COULD GET A HUNDRED BUCKS FOR THE WHOLE WORKS. TAKE THIS RADIO, FOR EXAMPLE. THEY OFFERED ME 10 BUCKS FOR IT ON A TRADE-IN.

Training Camp Gossip

By Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 11—A new outfield alignment for the New York Yankees with Tommy Henrich in right field and George Selkirk in left flanking Joe DiMaggio is planned by Manager Joe McCarthy. Myril Hoag will play center until DiMaggio signs his contract. McCarthy believes "Selkirk can play any field" and that Henrich's great arm will cut down runners at third base.

[illegible]

CLEARWATER, Fla.—One of those Mungo-Gomez batting bets is in the making. The Brooklyn Dodgers' fireball ace has made 5 hits in 12 trips to the plate in intrasquad games and is batting .417. He's just about in the mood to make another of those long odd bets with Gomez that he will outhit the Yankee hurler by 100 points.

[illegible]

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The busiest man in the St. Louis Cardinals' training camp is trainer Doc Weaver, who currently is caring for minor complaints of Terry Moore, Bob Weiland, Dizzy Dean, Johnny Hopp, Ray Benge, Joe Medwick, Mickey Owen and Sammy Baugh. Most of them have sore muscles, but Dizzy—different as usual—has a cold.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—It was [illegible] today that none of the pitchers and catchers working out with the St. Louis Browns has complained of a sore throwing arm.

"We may not be the best club in the league, but by the time we head north with the Cubs, in April, I'll stack these boys against the lot for being in the best condition," old Sarge drawled.

NEW ORLEANS—Trainer Lefty Weisman of the Cleveland Indians has definitely declared Ken Keltner, star rookie third baseman, out of the week-end games with the Philadelphia Athletics. Keltner was hit on the left elbow by a pitched ball yesterday and Weisman indicated an X-ray examination may be necessary. The [illegible] was paralyzed.

TAMPA, Fla.—Deacon Bill McKechnie is worried over Johnny Vandermeer's inability to locate the plate. Pitching against the Yannigans yesterday, Johnny walked three men and hit another in three innings.

LAKELAND, Fla.—The Detroit Tigers always knew Rudy York could hit, but learned only recently of his ability on the bases. One of his feats in an intrasquad game was to work a double steal with [illegible]

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal.—Arky Vaughan, holdout shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is expected by Sunday to confer with President Bill Benswanger. Infielder Lee Handley and his bride arrived yesterday. The second squad will not hold its first workout until Sunday.

AVALON, Calif.—Augie Galan, the Chicago Cubs outfielder who flopped in hitting last season, is making a great showing at the Cubs camp. Augie collected four hits in the game against the Yannigans yesterday. Two were home runs and he drove in eight runs to gladden Manager Charlie Grimm's heart.

PASADENA, Calif.—Manager [illegible] Dykes of the Chicago White Sox [illegible] Bob [illegible] tested.

[illegible] Manager [illegible] the Phillies have the best [illegible] he became manager. "This year I have at least seven pitchers I can count on to give a good account of themselves. The most I ever had before was four."

LAKE CHARLES, La.—Beaten twice by the Giants, the Athletics are hopeful of climbing to the .500 mark in their two games with the Cleveland Indians Saturday and Sunday. Connie Mack is confident the A's will play better ball against the tribe. While the regulars meet the Indians, a second team will play Beaumont of the Texas League at Beaumont Saturday and Sunday.

NEW HAVEN, March 11—Yale's hockey team defeated Harvard 2 to 1 in the play-off game of the series [illegible]

[illegible] scored late in the first [illegible] when Clem Kite [illegible] down [illegible] to flash the puck past Harvard's stellar goalie. Mitted [illegible] Winslow countered for Harvard at 5:50 of the second period. Fred Burr slipped in the deciding goal.

Harvard won the first game of the series 5 to 4, but Yale made the [illegible] game necessary by a [illegible] 3 to 2 triumph at Boston [illegible] week.

Mack Resigned To Lowly Berth

Athletics' Aged Manager Holds Out Little Hope for Club

LAKE CHARLES, La., March 11 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics, once a proud team, haven't a chance in the world of climbing out of the American League depths this year, admits their 75-year-old manager, Connie Mack.

But he is determined to build another championship club before he quits.

Connie has surprised everybody by his remarkable physical comeback. When he came to training camp, he lost 30 pounds off his already sparse frame during the winter and there was fear that the patriarch would find another active campaign too strenuous. But he's got 10 pounds of it back and, by his own admission, is eating like a horse.

CLUB COMING FAST

He was bright-eyed and [illegible] as he sat in the lobby of an old-fashioned hotel [illegible]

"My club's coming along," he said. "It's not ready yet to beat any of the six clubs that finished ahead of us last year, but in another season or two we're liable to surprise everybody and jump up several notches.

"But I'm not going to wait too long. I'm preparing to go into the market for the men I need. My town is livening up again and is about ready to support another championship team."

[illegible] San Francisco to take over second base [illegible] Connie gave three players and some cash [illegible]

SECOND BASE WEAK

[illegible] the Yankees.

He [illegible] hope in denial of the Yankees falling apart within the next three or four years.

"I can't see any place that they might weaken," he said. "That Gehrig is good for years and years, and so is their catcher, Bill Dickey. The pitchers and the rest are all young men and they have a fine new second baseman in Joe Gordon. I've watched him play."

Connie thinks he is going to have [illegible] pitching from some of his youngsters this season, better than last. Buck Ross, George Caster, [illegible] and Harry Kelley, right handers, and Edgar Smith and Lynn Dean, southpaws, give him six assorted and fairly competent starters. This staff, he figures, is about a year away.

[illegible] Moses, as everybody knows, he has plenty of right field [illegible] and Bob Johnson, a steady [illegible] in left. There's quite a [illegible] for the centerfield [illegible] Dee Fastering, a veteran who has been up a couple of times before, making a spirited bid against Herb B[illegible], a speedy 210-pounder, and Lou Finney, who [illegible] down the post most of last year to nobody's satisfaction.

Club Gyms Too Small, Arena Too Big For West End House-Y. M. H. A. Basketball Classics

By MURRAY KRAMER

[illegible] Y. M. H. A. and West End House are faced with a [illegible] as they [illegible] game [illegible] at the Boston Arena.

Past clashes have attracted so much attention that neither the Y gym nor the West End House gym has been able to accommodate the crowds which wished to see [illegible] basketball.

Necessity forced the teams to the Arena [illegible] for the game because [illegible] [illegible]

FIGHTS AT CLUBS

This attitude seems [illegible] past experience [illegible] that holding these games at either the Y or the House [illegible] too much fighting.

With the fans jammed in close and feeling [illegible] high there were often more battles among the spectators than on the floor.

However, everybody [illegible] that the future [illegible] will be big enough to allow the series to continue for almost every clash has been of the story book variety.

With one or two exceptions the outcome of these battles have been in doubt until the closing minutes.

Tomorrow night's affair should be no exception. In the first game between these two clubs West End House came from behind late in the game to win out by a narrow margin.

HYTE RETURNS

Since this affair, however, "Hookie" Hyte, "Y" star for many years, has returned to his guard position, and his presence has improved the team greatly.

With Hyte back the Roxbury outfit has been running roughshod over classy opposition and will enter the West End House game an even money shot.

The West End House is still confident though that it can again take the measure of the Y, as it will have Hal London back. Hal has been in Florida and his return boosts the Blossom street attack considerably.

This bitter feeling is not confined to the varsity alone for the Y Jewels and the West End House Jayvees who meet in the preliminary battle it out in much the same way as their senior idols.

Such is the setting at Madison Square Garden, down New York way this evening, with merry Max making the effort at comeback. Farr figures to in turn make the Baer effort a futile one and the match may or may not mean a real fight.

IDES OF MARCH [illegible]

The 15th is the date of closing for both the Haymarket and East Boston Relief stations . . . They are certainly going to close, and here's some new stuff on the situation . . . Boston's department of health will be quartered in the Haymarket relief station, and with the department will go all those little beasties, rats, guinea-pigs, rabbits, etc., which are used for experiments . . . (Occupants of City Hall will be relieved, by the way, at this exodus) . . . Then city departments which are occupying rented offices will be moved to the space—one entire floor and part of another—occupied at present by the health department.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

[illegible]

Walter O'Hara is having his first hearty laugh since he was dispossessed by the military from his Narragansett Penthouse . . . The tiff between Rockingham and Narragansett is going to cost the Rhode Island track pub-lenty—if it isn't settled . . . The "dope" favors Rockingham . . . It has been printed that Gansett requires a daily average "handle" of $350,000 to break even, and that Rockingham can get by on about half that amount . . . Little Agawam last season averaged $140,000 mutuel handle without a non-competitive date.

Gangs Ribbed—and How!

'Little Caesar' Tops 'Em All

By PEGGY DOYLE

Only a wholesale dosage of laughing-gas, you'll be thinking, could cause audiences to laugh so uproariously and unrestrainedly as they are doing this week at the Metropolitan.

As a matter of fact it is "A Slight Case of Murder," starring Eddie "Little Caesar" Robinson, that is causing the chorus of chuckles emanating from this popular Tremont street house.

It will be hard going for a gangster to be taken in to take himself seriously hereafter [illegible] this celluloid rubber of racketeering has begun unreeling in America's center of culture and cupidity. (The rackets had their beginnings in Boston, ask my knowing neighbor George Holland.)

In "A Slight Case of Murder," the "dese, dose and dem" guys are taken for an unaccustomed ride, murders happen wholesale, grand notes pop out of the woodwork. You'll die laughing, especially when Eddie Robinson, dressed fit to kill, as it behooves a Social-Register minded ex-beer baron, finds himself playing host to a brace of slightly dead gangsters.

"Romance in the Dark," scintillant with the talents of Gladys Swarthout, John Barrymore and John Boles, is a richly upholstered and lightsome musical film boasting operatic numbers as well as a few infectious numbers that should become popular.

Sybil Bowan Heads Stage Bill; 'Snow White' on Screen

Sybil Bowan, topflight mimic, and "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the year's box-office sensation, divide honors at the RKO-Boston, which this week returns to stage shows.

Her thumbnail sketch of Mrs. Roosevelt, one of the best in Miss Bowan's repertoire, was thoroughly amusing to yesterday's first show audience. They liked too her suburban woman's club president with all her irritatingly comic mannerisms. They found her dance number, reminiscent of Fanny Brice's mad mazurkas, something to laugh long and loud about.

Others on the bill are Monroe and Grant [illegible]

"Snow White," which has moved over to this house following a tremendously successful four weeks at the Keith Memorial, continues to attract the customers in hordes, droves and bevies. To old and young alike, young Dopey and the six oldster dwarfs, the Wicked Queen who turns herself into a witch, Snow White and Prince Charming would seem to be their favorite movie stars.

Hepburn as Gunmoll In New Film at Keith's

The impossible happens in RKO-Radio's "Bringing Up Baby," Keith-Memorial's new feature—the effete Katie Hepburn turns gunmoll, goes completely berserk.

Wacky is the word for "Bringing Up Baby," which is about [illegible] the maddest of the mad farces that have come out of Hollywood this year of the big [illegible] otherwise [illegible] Hepburn vehicle is decidedly entertaining. Katie is deft [illegible] as are Comedians Walter Catlett, Barry Fitzgerald and Charlie Ruggles.

Cary Grant, [illegible] in "The Awful Truth" with Irene Dunne, is not a standout in "Bringing Up Baby," which is [illegible] leopard hunt in rural Connecticut and discovers Miss Hepburn as a comedienne.

The title, "Baby," is a pet leopard that lopes in and out of the script, menacing Zoology Professor Grant's chances to win $1 million from Katie's rich aunt for his [illegible] museum [illegible] community in a state of chaos.

Asta, that [illegible] of "The Awful Truth" and "The Thin Man," is another [illegible]

[illegible]

Triumphantly returning with the leopard on leash, she is the only one unaware that this is not her pet but a wild, man-eating leopard from a nearby circus. There is a hectic few minutes in the jail until Cary Grant lures the leopard into a cell, locks it—and then very unheroically falls in a faint.

[illegible]

Barry Fitzgerald [illegible] handy man.

Sylvia Froos, stage, screen and radio vocalist, is the leading lady of the stage revue, "Everybody Swing." She is a handsome and vocally agreeable creature. Also in the excellent company are the Diamond Brothers, the Twelve Aristocrats [illegible]

Polish Screen Epic Lauded

"Love or a Kingdom," Polish production with English dialogue titles, which opened a three-day run yesterday at the Tremont Temple, [illegible] sixteenth century Poland [illegible] as having a "Mayerling" of its own.

Here is an epic love story, a Romeo and Juliet love story, [illegible] King August of Poland and the lovely Barbara, Princess Radziwill, whom he made his queen in defiance of his royal parents, the [illegible] of Poland and the princess' own brothers.

"Love or a Kingdom" is an exciting spectacle, rich in drama and handsomely mounted. It introduces to American film audiences Witold Zacharewicz, handsome romantic actor, and Jadwiga Smosarska, a beautiful and highly talented actress.

An historical epic done in the grand manner, "Love or a Kingdom" is not restricted to those familiar with the Polish tongue, for its English titles are more than adequately informative.

Divorcement of Western Electric Is Sought

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

News that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. would be asked to relinquish control of its manufacturing subsidiary, Western Electric, can hardly be termed a surprise to State street interests. For some reason it has been commonly thought that the Federal Communications Commission would call for divorcement.

As yet the FCC has not definitely demanded that A T & T dispose of its Western Electric holdings. Present status of the action is that Commissioner Walker has prepared a recommendation to that effect which requires full commission approval. In the event this is forthcoming, after promised early consideration, Telephone can still seek and obtain a court review. But even with such "ifs" it would appear that final separation of the two companies is inevitable and that the whole matter is of major financial significance to independent manufacturers as well as American Telephone.

First concern of stockholders is just how the divestment of Telephone's holdings of nearly 6,000,000 shares of Western Electric will be handled. In a previous case—Western Union some 20 years ago—the company sold its holdings to a syndicate which re-offered the stock. But there was a condition included in the transfer which called for the syndicate to first offer the stock to Western Union employes and officers. Another possible play is the outright distribution of Western Electric stock to Telephone stockholders. This would mean less than one third of a share for each share of Telephone.

FOREIGN NEWS AGAIN

Foreign news has once again taken the play away from domestic trade and business reports. This time it is Austria that supplies the troublesome items. With Central Europe an armed camp and with France busy with her own political and financial troubles, the possibility of war breaking out is naturally of great concern to the markets. France has been regarded as Austria's ally and if other powers think her troubles make it safe to go ahead with expansion plans financial circles feel that a real outbreak will take place.

War talk has been so persistent in late months that most major world markets became used to it and hardly paid any attention to the alarmists. Their sensitiveness at this time is about all the proof the average trader requires or asks for, in order to jump to hasty conclusions. The unfortunate part is that home trade and finance are not in robust condition and such selling however poor and uninformed could unloose a new wave of liquidation.

MARKET ACTION

Current market imposes on chartists the unpleasant job of considering the bearish aspects of a further fall in prices. The rails have already eased their way into new low ground and a closing on the Dow-Jones index of 26.07 will spread much gloom. However, until the industrials slide under their comparable old low it will not be wise to jump to the conclusion that the bullish cause is lost for months to come. We would prefer that readers of this column stick with market action rather than follow those who deal in conjectures.

An industrial closing of 117.48 will, under present conditions, suggest a retreat to at least the November low of about 113. Should this latter figure fall before the sellers a new phase of the bear market will be indicated and average prices will probably decline between 15 and 25 points. That is the long range picture from a possibility angle. It is not definite but remains to be proven.

Stocks in Quiet Rally After Opening Relapse

North American Reports Gain In 1937 Net

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—North American Co., public utility holding concern, reported 1937 net income of $16,502,481, equal after preferred dividends to $1.95 a share of common stock. This compared with $16,743,621 or $1.74 a share in 1936.

Commenting on the company's operations, James F. Fogarty said that while a continuing improvement in electric output and revenues was evident during the first three quarters of the year, "the rate of progress was interrupted during the last quarter and the early part of 1938 due to the unsettled condition of general business."

Operating revenues were $121,347,366, an increase of 4.70 per cent over 1936. Electric output of North American subsidiaries established a record at 6,448,127,802 kilowatt hours, an increase of 7.71 per cent over the previous year.

Gross expenditures for plant and system additions in 1937, Fogarty said, totaled $32,0000,000, of which nearly 90 per cent was for electric facilities.

United Air Lines Transport Corp. reported 1937 net loss of $754,486 compared with net income of $367,282 for 1936.

W. A. Patterson, president, attributed the loss to a decrease in traffic, along with higher costs of wages, taxes and materials, and substantial expenditures for research and safety promotion.

Passenger revue for the year totaled $5,253,589 against $5,844,331 in 1936.

Bancroft Views Whitney Case

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 11 (AP)—James R. Bancroft of Boston, president of the American Institute of Finance, said today: "The Whitney case spells the end of the New York Stock Exchange as a private club."

"It is a God-given opportunity for the politicians to demand that the exchange be made impotent against repetition of this alleged irregularity in the handling of speculative securities held in trust," Bancroft added.

Carloadings Up 40,986 Cars

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today 552,916 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was an increase of 40,986 cars, or 8 per cent compared with the preceding week; a decrease of 177,413, or 24.3 per cent, compared with a year ago, and a decrease of 346,582, or 38.5 per cent, compared with 1930.

Nominate Draper To Reserve Board

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)—Ernest Draper, assistant secretary of commerce since 1935, today was nominated by President Roosevelt to fill one of the two existing vacancies on the federal reserve board.

Draper was born here on May 15, 1885, but has his residence in Connecticut. Educated at Amherst college, he began a business career in New York in 1906 and from 1912 to 1920 was president of the American Creosoting Company. He has served on the New York State unemployment commission, and on various similar state bodies for a number of years.

Rails Heartened By Loadings Increase

NEW YORK, March 11—Quiet buying support got behind the stock market today after leaders had suffered declines running to 2 or more points.

The list was at its worst in the opening period, with dealings relatively lively on the slide. The pace slowed later when extreme losses were halved or cancelled in many cases. Recovery tendencies were still in evidence near the final hour.

NEWS SPOTTY

News from a market standpoint continued spotty. In addition to sourish sentiment engendered by the Whitney failure and indictment aftermath, traders saw scant cheer in the business picture. Washington happenings, while viewed as more constructive than otherwise from a tax revision angle, seemingly were without buoying price influence. Selling to meet March 15 income payments was a retarding factor.

Railroad bonds once more slanted downward and major commodities were inclined to give ground. Foreign securities markets weakened as tension over the Austro-German situation became pronounced.

Conspicuous share losers on the morning retreat were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Schenley, National Distillers, Johns-Manville, U. S. Gypsum, Anaconda, St. Joseph Lead, International Harvester.

Fairly resistant were General Motors, Yellow Truck, Public Service of N. J., Consolidated Edison, N. Y. Central, U. S. Rubber and Standard Oil of N. J.

Rails had the benefit of the official report on last week's freight loadings which showed a more than seasonal increase. The depressed feeling over the disappointing rate boost, though, restrained this group.

STATEMENT HELPFUL

Helpful was the President's statement the White House railroad conference would take place early next week. The plight of the carriers was stressed by President Williamson of N. Y. Central who said the road's car loadings from January 1 to March 5 were off 29 per cent from a year ago.

Baltimore & Ohio, sliding Thursday, did better on expectations of a new Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan to be used for maintenance purposes.

American Telephone had difficulty in accomplishing an upward reversal. There was a possibility the forthcoming Federal Communications Commission report on the telephone set-up would urge the divorce of its manufacturing subsidiary, Western Electric.

Distillery issues were affected by the House proposal of a raise in liquor taxes of 25 cents a gallon. Signs of slight expansion in automobile centers aided motors.

CURRENT TOPICS

Market analysts found little comfort in the Dun & Bradstreet survey which estimated retail spending throughout the country averaged 2 to 5 per cent under last week and 6 to 13 per cent below the corresponding period last year. Wholesale purchasing was placed at 8 to 22 per cent under the 1937 week.

Another drop in commercial loans of around $3,000,000 for the week ended Wednesday was disclosed in the Federal Reserve report. A jump of $92,000,000 in brokers' borrowings was attributed mainly to preparations for participation in the Treasury's March 15 financing.

The French franc, at the beginning of foreign currency transactions, was up .02⅝ of a cent at 3.18¼ cents. Sterling was down ⅝ of a cent at $5.00⅞.

Distilled Liquors Reports Profits

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Distilled Liquors Corp., the applejack brandy makers whose recent declining stock values were believed in Wall Street a prime factor in the failure of Richard Whitney & Co., announced today it had completed the first profitable six months operations in its history.

For the six months ended February 28, 1938, profit was $24,909 after taxes and charges, President Norman W. Drescher said. From the time of formation in September, 1937, to August 31, last, Drescher said the company had a cumulative operating deficit of $227,922.

Trace Whitney Troubles to Last Fall

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Financial difficulties of the bankrupt firm of Richard Whitney & Co. were traced back today by a member of the firm to an unsatisfied demand last fall of the New York Stock Exchange that Whitney surrender funds in the exchange "gratuity fund," maintained for the benefit of widows and orphans of exchange members.

F. Kingsley Rodewald, senior partner under Whitney, told investigators for Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., that Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange, could not immediately produce the securities because he had pledged some of them on his own personal loans at banks.

Bennett's inquiry into the tangled financial affairs of Whitney and his firm was entirely separate from the grand jury investigation being pressed by Manhattan District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, which resulted yesterday in Whitney's being indicted for grand larceny in connection with funds held in the trust fund of his father-in-law.

There was no particular difficulty in reassembling the securities for the stock exchange, Rodewald went on, under questioning by Assistant Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall, but the exchange made several demands before they were returned.

COMMODORE TESTIFIES

Another witness, William A. W. Stewart, commodore of the exclusive New York Yacht Club, testified Whitney, former treasurer of the club, "unlawfully" took securities of the club from the safe deposit box in which they were held in Whitney's custody.

Other witnesses asserted that these securities, amounting to $109,384, were the same as those Whitney pledged at a bank to get a big personal loan, and described deals in which Whitney allegedly took the securities of clients, including the assets of the estate of a dead woman, and took them to banks to pledge them for money for personal loans.

No total amount of securities thus pledged has been estimated, but scattered estimates of today's witnesses exceeded yesterday's total of $798,000.

Whitney today left his swank town apartment, just east of Park Avenue, to confer with his attorneys. His wife, Mrs. Gertrude Sheldon Whitney, social leader, remained in seclusion. He was free in $10,000 bail on the grand larceny indictment obtained by District Attorney Dewey.

Whitney had been scheduled today to plead to this indictment in general sessions court, but his attorney obtained a week's continuance, although hearing is now formally scheduled for Monday.

The Dewey indictment, which for the time being took the spotlight from the Bennett investigation, was based upon the alleged misappropriation of from $105,000 to $110,000 worth of securities from the estate of his father-in-law. The beneficiaries were his wife, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Sheldon Murphy, who is the complainant of record against him, and his alma mater, Harvard University, and St. Paul's School of Concord, N. H.

Still holding fire were four other investigations, already quietly begun.

PRELIMINARY STAGES

Gregory F. Noonan, in charge of the criminal division of the United States attorney's office, said his investigation was in the preliminary stages. The Securities and Exchange Commission, the Stock Exchange itself, and Federal Bankruptcy Referee Irwin Kurtz have all begun investigations.

Noonan added that his staff was now going over preliminary reports of SEC accountants.

"I'll have enough information early next week to decide whether to go before the grand jury," he remarked.

Asked what federal violation he suspected or speculated upon, he replied:

"It might be a conspiracy charge, or it might be mail fraud; it might be a violation of the (securities) exchange law—in fact, it might be almost anything in the statute books."

A federal indictment, if there should be one, would not by law take priority over the state action, he said, adding:

Taxing Heat

An average of $21 would be added to the annual fuel bill of 1,500,000 American home owners if the proposed federal tax of one cent a gallon on fuel oil for heating is passed, according to the Oil Burner Institute.

United Shoe Machinery Corporation

The Directors of this Corporation have declared a dividend of 37½c per share upon the Preferred capital stock. They have also declared a dividend of 62½c per share upon the Common capital stock. The dividends on both Preferred and Common stock are payable April 5, 1938, to stockholders of record at the close of business March 15, 1938.

New Trade Pact Offers Jobs For Czechs

Gesture Seen Unwise In View of U. S. Unemployment

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, March 11 — The signing by Secretary Hull of the new trade pact with Czechoslovakia, the seventeenth of the series, means that the process of exporting jobs under the euphemistic name of reciprocal agreements goes merrily on.

Czechoslovakia is a special pet of the United States, having been partly carved out of President Wilson's idealistic formula, and even now, if any foreign country is to get a break, this one is doubtless entitled to special favors.

Nevertheless, with great unemployment in such American shoe towns as Binghamton and Endicott, N. Y.; Boston, Mass., and St. Louis, Mo., it is highly questionable whether such friendly gestures to increase employment in the Bata works at Zlin, Czechoslovakia, is well advised.

IDLE WORKERS IN U. S.

Any seeming saving in importing cheap merchandise will be offset by the expense of keeping idle workers in America on the dole or in made-work at the expense of the American taxpayer. Thus, when the full cost of such "cheap" imports are written into the national ledger, the economy disappears.

A foreign trade balanced in dollars is not necessarily warranted.

In the case of shoe labor, a dollar spent here will buy less than two hours of work, compared with almost 3½ hours in Czechoslovakia. The differential is even more striking when trade with coolie countries is considered.

The real test of foreign trade is whether it provides as many man-hours of work at home as it gives overseas.

This criterion is especially significant at a time like this when upwards of 10,000,000 Americans are reputedly unemployed.

Obviously, a step toward balancing the home labor situation lies in making at home for domestic consumption those products which we are equipped to make.

To encourage rising imports from countries with lower wage and living standards is to tend to destroy the very foundations of American long term progress.

In face of the existing depression in the American shoe industry the new pact by executive fiat reduces the tariff from 33 1-3 per cent to 50 per cent.

As a face-saving reservation, it limits total Czech imports to an increase of one-quarter over the 1937 record.

Before the war it was profitable for our country to have a comparatively free trade in shoes.

But as a result of technological changes abroad, our shoes exports have all but disappeared, whereas our shoe imports have risen at a spectacular rate.

"SWEATED LABOR"

But the academic mind will point out that Czech shoe imports will be limited to 1¼ per cent of the domestic production, forgetting that this additional marginal supply will tend to set prices for all competitive shoes sold in the United States.

It is absurd to submit American workers and American industries to increased competition from "sweated labor" markets overseas at the very time when the same reform administration over here has been raising American costs through a variety of social schemes

Put 'Govenment' Out of 'Business,' Says Haney

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)
Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, March 11—The bill to "reorganize" the government is now before us. Mixed with some good features are the bad features that are being fought by the same courageous and devoted group of senators who opposed the court-packing scheme. They are especially concerned about the proposal to give the President more power over government spending, and over such administrative bodies as the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Trade Commission.

IMPORTANT POINTS

These points are important. Back of them, however, lies the great question, do we want the government to run business?

The arguments for the bill always center on "efficiency." Therefore, what we want to know is, what sort of efficiency do they mean?

Of course, they say "efficiency in government." That, however, merely leads to the question, what sort of "government" do they mean? The whole thing depends upon that. If they mean an autocratic and dictatorial government, which is to run the economic life of the nation, then by all means they should be given the concentration of power that the President has sought. A dictator should not be hampered in his spending and control.

But if we are to hold to our democracy, the government should get out of business, and then we will not need a dictator.

The New Deal administration has itself been an object lesson that strongly suggests the defeat or essential modification of any measure that tends toward autocracy. In the first place, the President has all along pressed for more power. His administration has used propaganda and distributions of money and patronage, to an extent never before seen in this country. (Regardless of what has been accomplished, this is just plain fact.)

We are demoralized by the mixing of "relief" and "security" with wages.

The fear of an autocratic government has done more to prolong depression and prevent recovery than any other single factor.

And the whole thing comes to this: We have been mixing economics and politics by injecting government into business. We get both bad economics and bad politics—bad business and bad government.

OFFERS REMEDY

The remedy is clear: First, we must put the "government" out of "business." Then we must make business economically efficient, and at the same time make government politically efficient.

You see, in democratic "business," buyers vote for what they want through the prices they pay. We are not and cannot be equal as economic individuals.

But in democratic "government," we vote at the polls, and each of us has just one vote no matter what his income or what he does to deserve it.

We should take our politicians out of business. Then we can do what we want in the way of regulating and helping private business.

Junior Board Of Directors Builds Profits

Forbes Tells How Plan Worked Successfully

By B. C. FORBES

How can an enterprise be pushed ahead?

It must be done, of course, by man power, by brains.

But how can the best that is in a whole organization be brought out and capitalized profitably for wage earners, management and also stockholders? One company has a plan which has operated most successfully, a plan adaptable to any and every sizeable concern and involving little or no expense.

In a nut-shell, the plan centers around the younger element, injecting them into the very heart of the company's activities—production, sales and also management.

How rapidly America's business leaders pass from the scene is tragically illustrated by the fact that of 50 men foremost in business, banking, industry, transportation, etc., 20 years ago, and whose careers I then described in a bulky volume, only 10 are alive today, and of those only a few are still active.

IMPORTANCE OF YOUTH

This emphasizes the importance of developing younger blood and encouraging it to shoulder responsibilities.

One shining example of the value of such a policy is McCormick & Company, of Baltimore. When Charles P. McCormick succeeded the founder, in 1932, his first step was to impress upon the directors, all middle-aged or old, that he proposed to set up a junior board of directors, which was formed with 17 assistant department managers and others who showed special interest in their work. He explained the purpose was to enlist "the energizing power of new ideas" and to train successors to members of the directorate.

Two years later an analysis made by Mr. McMormick revealed that practically every recommendation made by the junior board "had been adopted, and with some amazingly profitable results."

Among other things, the younger group inaugurated a sponsorship plan for having a junior executive take a man from the office or factory for a month and, after hours, discuss things with him. Technical and other specialists were brought in to address the junior board.

So well did this innovation function that a factory board was next organized, composed of workers named by foremen and heads of factory departments. This experiment brought results beyond all expectations.

Selling and sales promotion problems having become a vital factor, a sales board was created in 1935, consisting of the general sales manager, advertising manager, district sales manager and six salesmen.

"This board," says Mr. McCormick, in a just-published book, "Multiple Management" (Harper's), "has practically all the responsibility for merchandising and distributing policies. We consider advertising as a sales power, a necessary part of our selling effort and it is, therefore, placed under the authority of the sales board. Its recommendations are worth many times the expense and its indirect values are inestimable."

"EXCEPTIONAL PROGRESS"

What have been some of the results of this "multiple management?" The company has made "exceptional progress," practically all of it attributed to the innovation here described. Never once has there been "a hint of labor trouble."

"Satisfactory labor relations and a large increase in volume and profits are not all the benefits we credit to multiple management. There have been many other direct results of great value and not a few intangibles."

This company's example has inspired some 50 large American concerns, 20 in Britain and several in Canada to organize junior executive boards.

Lumber Industry Asks Rate Cut

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)—Due to the devastating California floods, the California Redwood Association today asked the ICC to suspend the lumber freight rate increases granted Tuesday, pending the end of the emergency in that state. The association asked that the rate increases as applied to lumber be suspended for at least 30 days.

The association pointed out that the only rail service from Humboldt County is by the Northwestern Pacific, which was heavily damaged by floods. The prospects are that the line cannot be reopened until April 1, it was stated. Orders which have accumulated cannot be filled for 30 days after the road is opened, it was pointed out. The lumber producers claim that the increased rates after the flood subjects them to an undue competitive situation.

The Editor Says:

"Germany's army probably will be increased to a strength of 45 divisions—more than 900,000 men—the fourth largest active army in the world."—News Item.

Still the MOST MILITARISTIC NATION IN THE WORLD and the most aggressive is not Germany, nor yet Italy.

It is Russia.

Russia has 1,400,000 men under arms on a PEACE basis.

Italy has not as many; Germany little more than half as many.

If Italy and Germany have dictators, Russia has an ABSOLUTE DESPOT,—a cruel and murderous despot, who almost daily dips his hands in the blood of his OPPRESSED people.

Yet many who profess alarm about Germany and Italy are SILENT about Russia, or openly SYMPATHIC toward Russia.

All such are SUSPECT in America.

Their counsel has the wily insincerity of false friends who would deliver us FROM the thief and INTO THE HANDS OF the assassin.

FALSE FRIENDS, indeed, to America are those who would have democracy make common cause with ANY enemy of democracy.

We have no common cause with militaristic nations or foreign tyrannical creeds, dictators or despots.

Let us make no covenants with any of them, none with Nazism or Fascism, least of all with the WORST OF THEM ALL—Red Russia.

Let us keep free from ALL tyrannies, and attend strictly to the preservation of OUR OWN DEMOCRACY.

LET EVERY OFFICIAL ACT

"Mayor Walter A. Griffin of Lawrence will personally head a delegation from Merrimack Valley Tuesday, when the United States Tariff Commission opens public hearings in Washington on Secretary Hull's proposed reciprocal trade treaty with Great Britain." — Thursday's Boston Evening American.

The Lawrence Mayor deserves praise; too bad other mayors and other officials do not show the same determination to save the jobs and wages of the people who live in their cities.

This week, Secretary of State Hull concluded his tariff-slashing treaty with Czechoslovakia in a manner that would have done justice to Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin or any other European or Asiatic dictator.

His word was law, his will was the ONLY will. And the protests, pleas and appeals from Lynn, Haverhill and other shoe centers received about as much attention from him as a fly walking across the ceiling would get from an audience in the Boston Garden.

Mr. Hull will be as dictatorial as ever on Tuesday. That's certain. Men who are convinced that they are right and the rest of the world wrong do not change.

It is, therefore, the duty of EVERY NEW ENGLAND OFFICIAL who can possibly afford the time and money to be in Washington when the tariff reduction session opens.

NO NEW ENGLAND OFFICIAL HAS A MORE IMPORTANT DUTY.

Mayors, selectmen, councillors and members of legislatures have talked for months about charities, doles and TEMPORARY JOBS.

Now comes an opportunity for them to fight for PERMANENT JOBS for the people. They should not miss the opportunity.

Let it not be said a few months hence that any responsible holder of public office failed to act when there was still time to prevent more pay envelopes being shipped across the Atlantic ocean to a foreign country.

WE NEED THE MONEY

"A $2,088,000 penalty may be imposed on Massachusetts by the Federal Government if the State Legislature diverts the highway funds again this year."—Public Works Commissioner William F. Callahan.

Mr. Callahan's warning concerns every Massachusetts resident, none more than the Governor himself.

Many jobs could be provided with $2,088,000. It would take hundreds of men off doles and charity lists. We cannot afford to lose it.

The fact that the Federal Government is now threatening to punish this State to the tune of $1,057,000 for using gasoline tax money to balance the lop-sided budget last year should be sufficient warning to Mr. Hurley.

He should not continue with his plans to divert eight millions MORE of the highways funds this year.

On many occasions the Federal Government has shown apparent delight in tightening the Treasury purse strings when Massachusetts sought aid.

That ought to be enough. At least it should be enough to make Mr. Hurley think twice before he provides an excuse for drawing the strings even tighter.

". . . The fundamental naval policy of the United States . . . provides for the protection of both coasts of the continental United States, of the Panama Canal, Alaska, Hawaii and our insular possessions, of our commerce and of our citizens abroad.

"This fundamental naval policy also provides for the maintenance of a Navy to support our national policies. This includes the support and maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine.

"This naval policy states that the Navy is maintained to guarantee our national security, but NOT FOR AGGRESSION."

The Voice of New York

By Louis Sobol

CASUAL COMMENT: The theater is compiling its legends about two beloved sons—brooding George S. Kaufman and calm-miened George Abbott. Theirs is the magic touch, and the barest suspicion that an Abbott or a Kaufman is serving in a directorial or play-surgical role will crowd the premiere with the discriminatory elite of town. Few plays bearing their names have ever flopped.

There is reason for that, of course—they rarely permit a show to come to Broadway if it reveals faltering qualities in out of town tryouts. As a result, the annual income of each is computed high in the six figures.

Short Chops: Suavest of Manhattan's headwaiters is Knauest, who quietly directs at the 58th street Longchamps...I have seen him tame a sullen waiter into flustering meekness with a crisp whisper and a smile...Handsomest headwaiter is Fred Chiavantone of the International Casino...He owns a 40-room house in the swank Riverdale section, a summer home in New Jersey and a villa in Italy ...Mildest mannered headwaiter is Karles at the Old Vienna Restaurant, an expert haranguer on European politics...He claims to be a cousin of the late Austrian Chancellor Egbert Dolfuss...Most exitable is Albert Berryman of the Paradise...His chief diversion is his motorboat—his greatest love centers on dogs...

The circus is following the stream-lined trend. Young John Ringling North, Yale man and still in his late 20's, has hired Charles LeMaire to recostume the entire troupe—from the attendants to the bareback riders. Even the cage in which the redoubtable Gargantua, most ferocious (I've read the press notices) of all gorillas in captivity, is to be ribboned in white, with little girls in blue and white tights stationed at each corner.

---

Brieflets: Robert Benchley, critic and screen comic, refuses to sit anywhere except on the aisle at openings...His phobia against center-seating originated years ago when someone screamed: "Fire," and the two women next to him fainted, blocking his exit...Flier Dick Merrill, when asked whether he has ever been frightened in a moment of danger in the air, usually replies: "Never. The Lord is my co-pilot" ...When Howard Dietz, librettist and publicity-chief for Metro, was approached by Samuel Goldwyn who sought his services, he replied: "I'll take the job if you'll let me walk into your office every afternoon, unannounced, to chat with you"... When Goldwyn balked on the pact a few days later, Dietz submitted his resignation...Spyros Skouras, millionaire operator of a chain of theaters, has two sons named Plato and Socrates...

---

Harlem argot has its zig. A "dinner" to you may be something served on a table—to the sepian slangster it's a girl!..."Hawkins" is cold weather..."Hip" is smart..."Collar"—to understand...A "Sender"—terrific ..."Drag"—a bore..."Pink"—a white man ..."Huck"—colored fellow..."To gun"—to be merry..."Cat"—a musician. My informant giggled hysterically in defining the next word. "Mistuh Sobel," he gurgled, "this will really send yo'. Whut yo' think we sez for 'home'?" He caught his breath and exploded: "'Domicile.' Ain't dat a killer!!"

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

GREAT BRITAIN doubles her expenditures on her secret service. France has been steadily increasing her appropriations since 1933. Germany and Italy are spending steadily mounting annual sums on their espionage organizations.

Estimates of the total world cost of spying and counter-spying are largely guesswork, but several investigators recently have put them at around $25,000,000 a year.

Cleopatra and Marc Antony communicated by elaborate and ingenious codes. Some of the codes used in the World War had their origins in the pre-Christian era. Paris apaches communicated by an arrangement of women's dress, one stocking down indicating "look out for the cops."

This dress code was traced back to Babylonian times. It is a story as old as the Garden of Eden, and so are many of its tricks and devices. The post-war years have been modernizing it, as they have been modernizing guns and airplanes.

One thing the espionage experts agree on. The woman spy is out. All researchers and authorities, the most important of whom is Ludwig Grein, the greatest spy of the World War, agree that she isn't the type—that her real exploits exist only in stage and fiction melodrama.

"She falls in love with the man she ought to send to a firing squad," said Herr Grein. "Her vanity and impulsive traits are ruinous. She cannot be brought under strict military morale. There has been a vast amount of ridiculous rubbish written about women spies."

Hollywood isn't listening. We'll probably continue to get a lot of women spies in the films. Incidentally, I thought that "I Was a Spy" was a rattling good film.

As to current moving pictures, this department thought "Nothing Sacred" a bang-up offering, marred by a bit of typical Hollywood obtuseness. Ben Hecht is a big-town citizen of Chicago and New York and, for that reason, his crude and distorted portrayal of Vermont country people may possibly be understood, but by no means accepted as valid in any detail. His village folk were mean, penurious, cantankerous yokels who always charged the visiting New York hero for talking to him, or giving him an address.

Hollywood will turn itself inside out to achieve a bit of historic accuracy in the doublet of a Henry VIII courtier, and let slide this stupid libel, of the days when the Main Stem used to make fun of the rustics. It isn't true. Vermont is one of the most civilized states in the Union.

On many a Vermont countryside and at many cross-roads I have found courtesy, hospitality and intelligence. There is a lot about Vermont—and the rest of America, for that matter—that Hollywood doesn't even suspect, let alone know.

Film-making is so urgently important in our national education and conditioning that it shouldn't be left entirely in the hands of craftsmen from Lit-up Lane.

Either Ben Hecht et al. ought to be apprenticed at a few years' hay-shoveling or they ought to transplant to Hollywood a few people who know something about Walt Whitman's "Democracy of the States."

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

WHEN I discover something unusual and true I find that any comment is only impudence—as, for instance, the following:

"It is one thing for individual or private groups of individuals to provide for their own future; it is quite another to demand that the State provide individuals with financial guarantees.

"The new concept changes not only our traditional political thinking but also our traditional idea of the importance and responsibility of the individual.

"We have been brought up to think of the American as a man who stood upon his own feet and blamed only himself for failure.

A parasitic or a pioneering America?—Americans must decide NOW.

It is persistently rumored that the ambitious Japanese have offered the Mexican government, which is hard pressed, $10,000,000 for an iron-ore concession at Mazatlan, on the West coast of Mexico.

Now, Mazatlan is about halfway between San Francisco and the Panama Canal.

There are some subtle ways of circumventing the Monroe Doctrine. It is being done on a rather large scale in South America, where Germany and Italy are pouring out propaganda every day in short-wave sales talks from the home grounds and where Europe is underselling us through swarms of salesmen.

We are a rather sleepy-eyed people, slow to suspicion. But we may wake up some fine morning, not in the very distant future, and find that Europe and Japan are entrenched from the Rio Grande south to Patagonia.

The "We Are Here, Lafayette" of twenty-one years ago may be changed to "We Are Here, Mr. Hull!"

In the first chapter of Hitler's "My Battle" you will find this paragraph (Hitler was Austrian-born, remember):

"It stands me in good stead today that fate decided that Braunau should be my birthplace. That little town lies on the frontier between the two German states, the reunion of which we younger ones regard as a work worthy of accomplishment by all means in our power."

That "reunion" has taken place—Hitler eats up Austria.
